You love the 1990s!

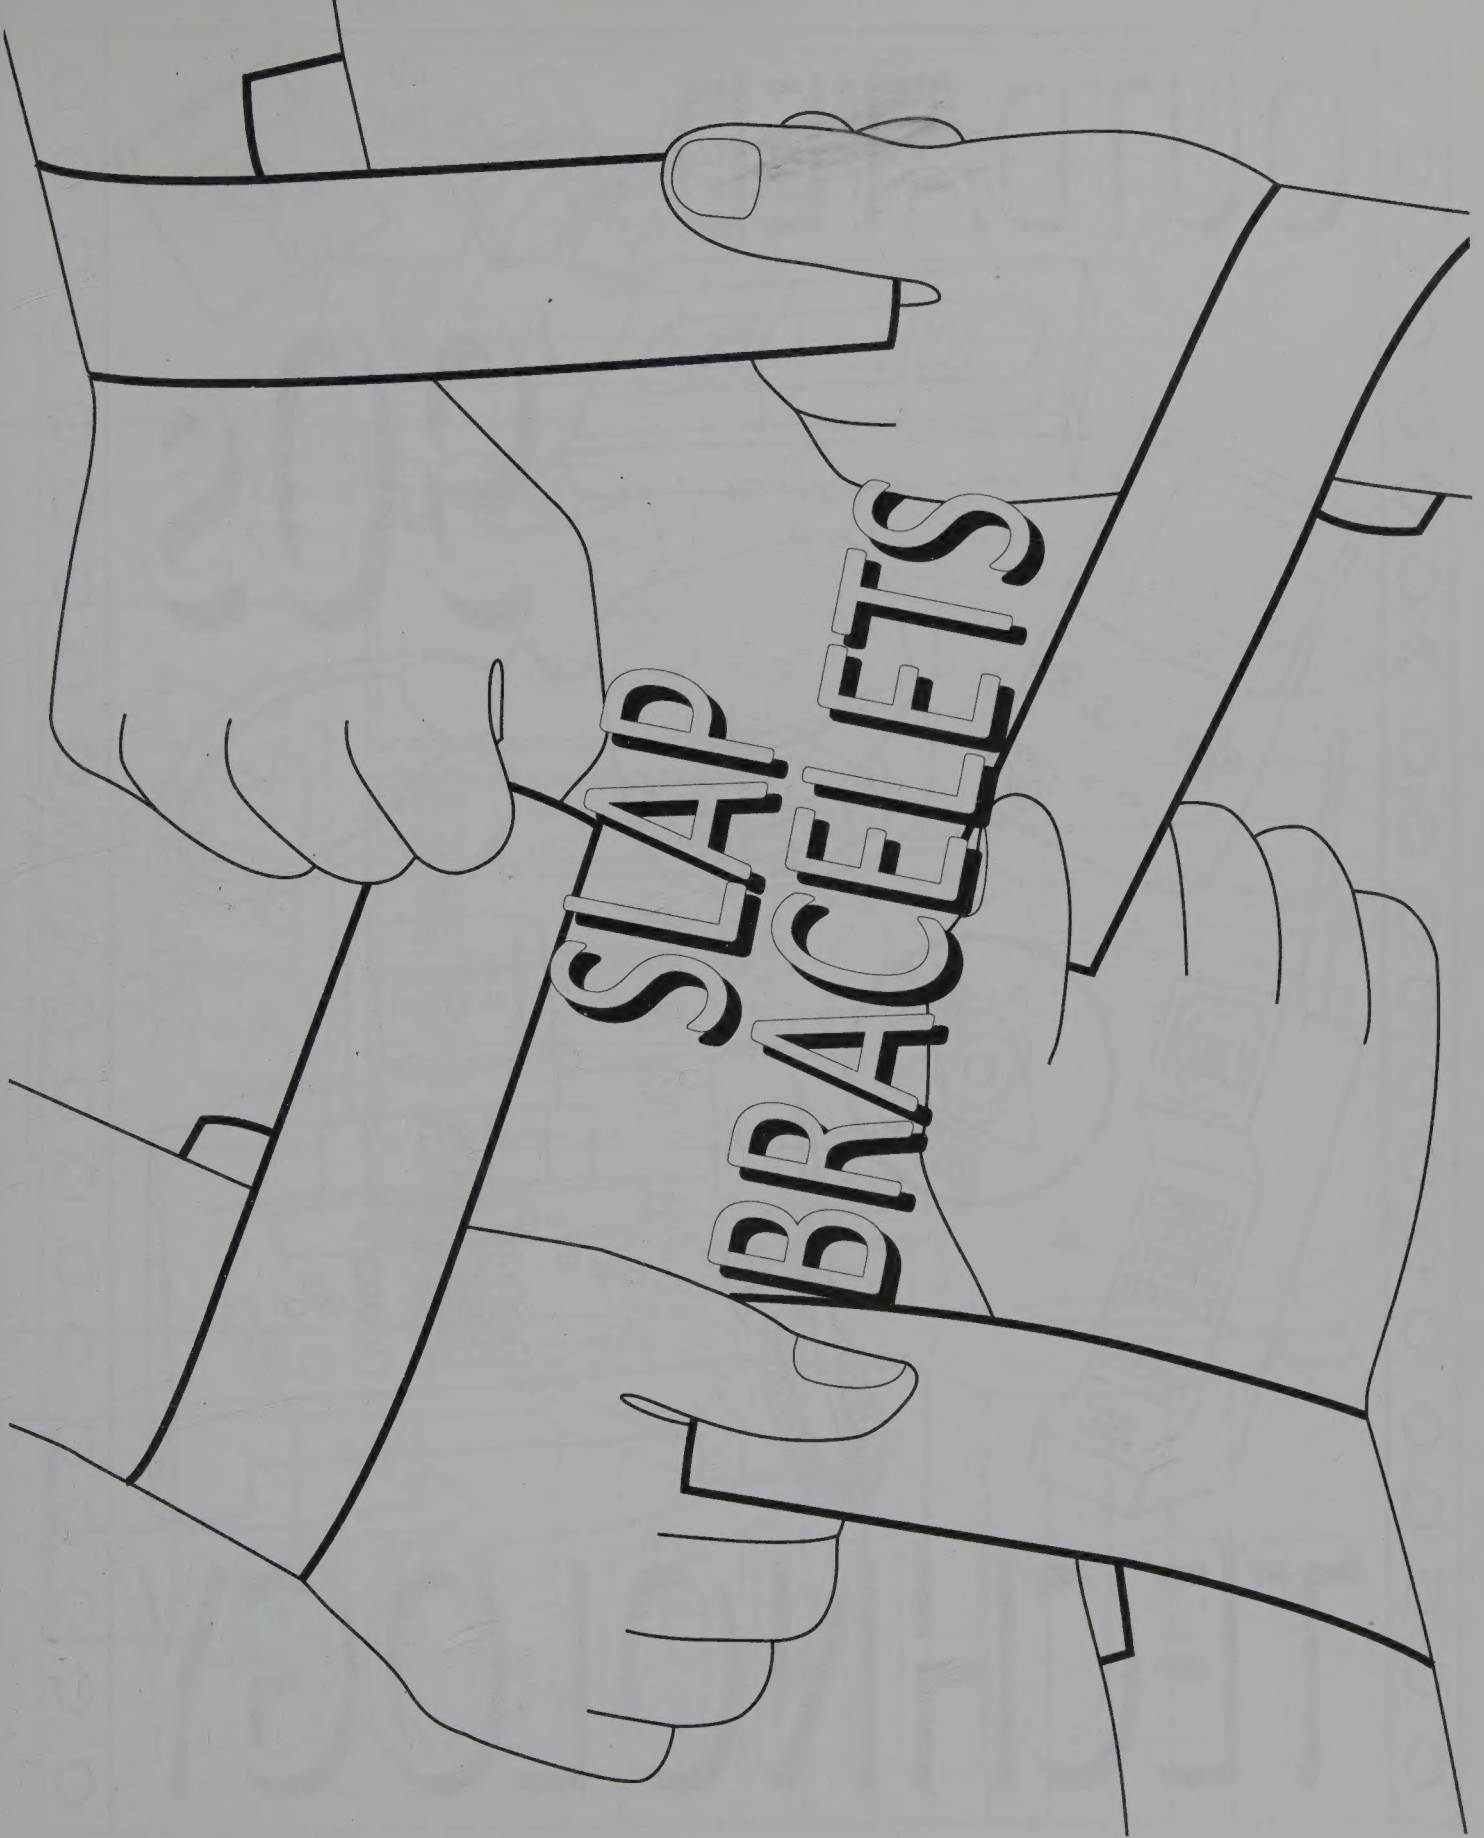

Of course you do—it was the most “da bomb” time period in human history. And even now, in retrospect, when much of the fashion perhaps seems cringe-worthy and the pop culture ripe for parody, everyone must certainly agree that it was a memorable decade in which a lot of fun stuff happened.

I hope you enjoy coloring and laughing your way through my favorite 1990s moments, movies, music, shows, politics, and people, and even relive and remember your own favorite '90s things in the process.

Whoomp, there it is,
James Grange

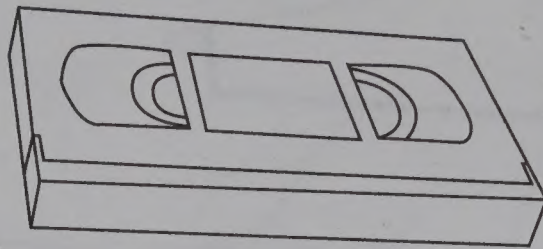

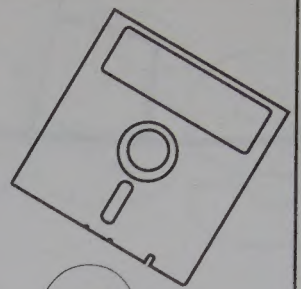

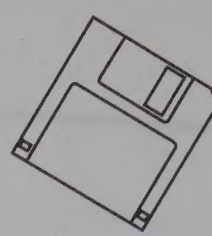

This 1995 movie taught us so much about life, including how not to suck and blow, the importance of RSVPing, that grades are totally negotiable, and what it meant to be a Monet, a Betty, or a Baldwin.

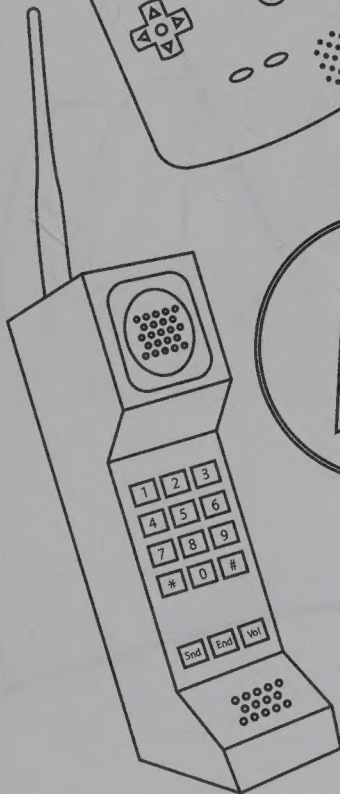

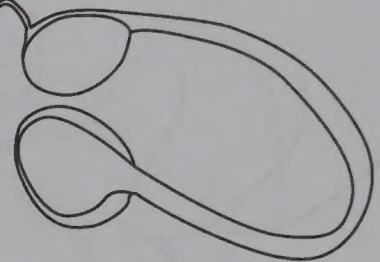

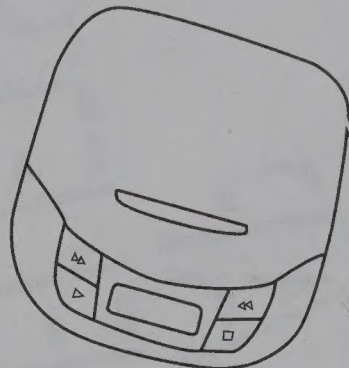

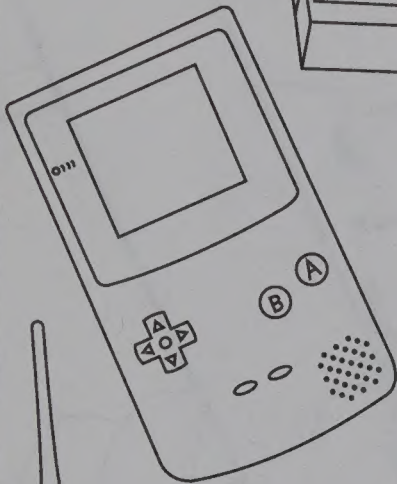

Oh snap! No, really, oh snap. It was not uncommon for these decorative bracelets to injure children's wrists when the sharp-edged 0.004-inch-thick steel became exposed through the fabric or plastic. Ouch!

OUTDATED

'90s

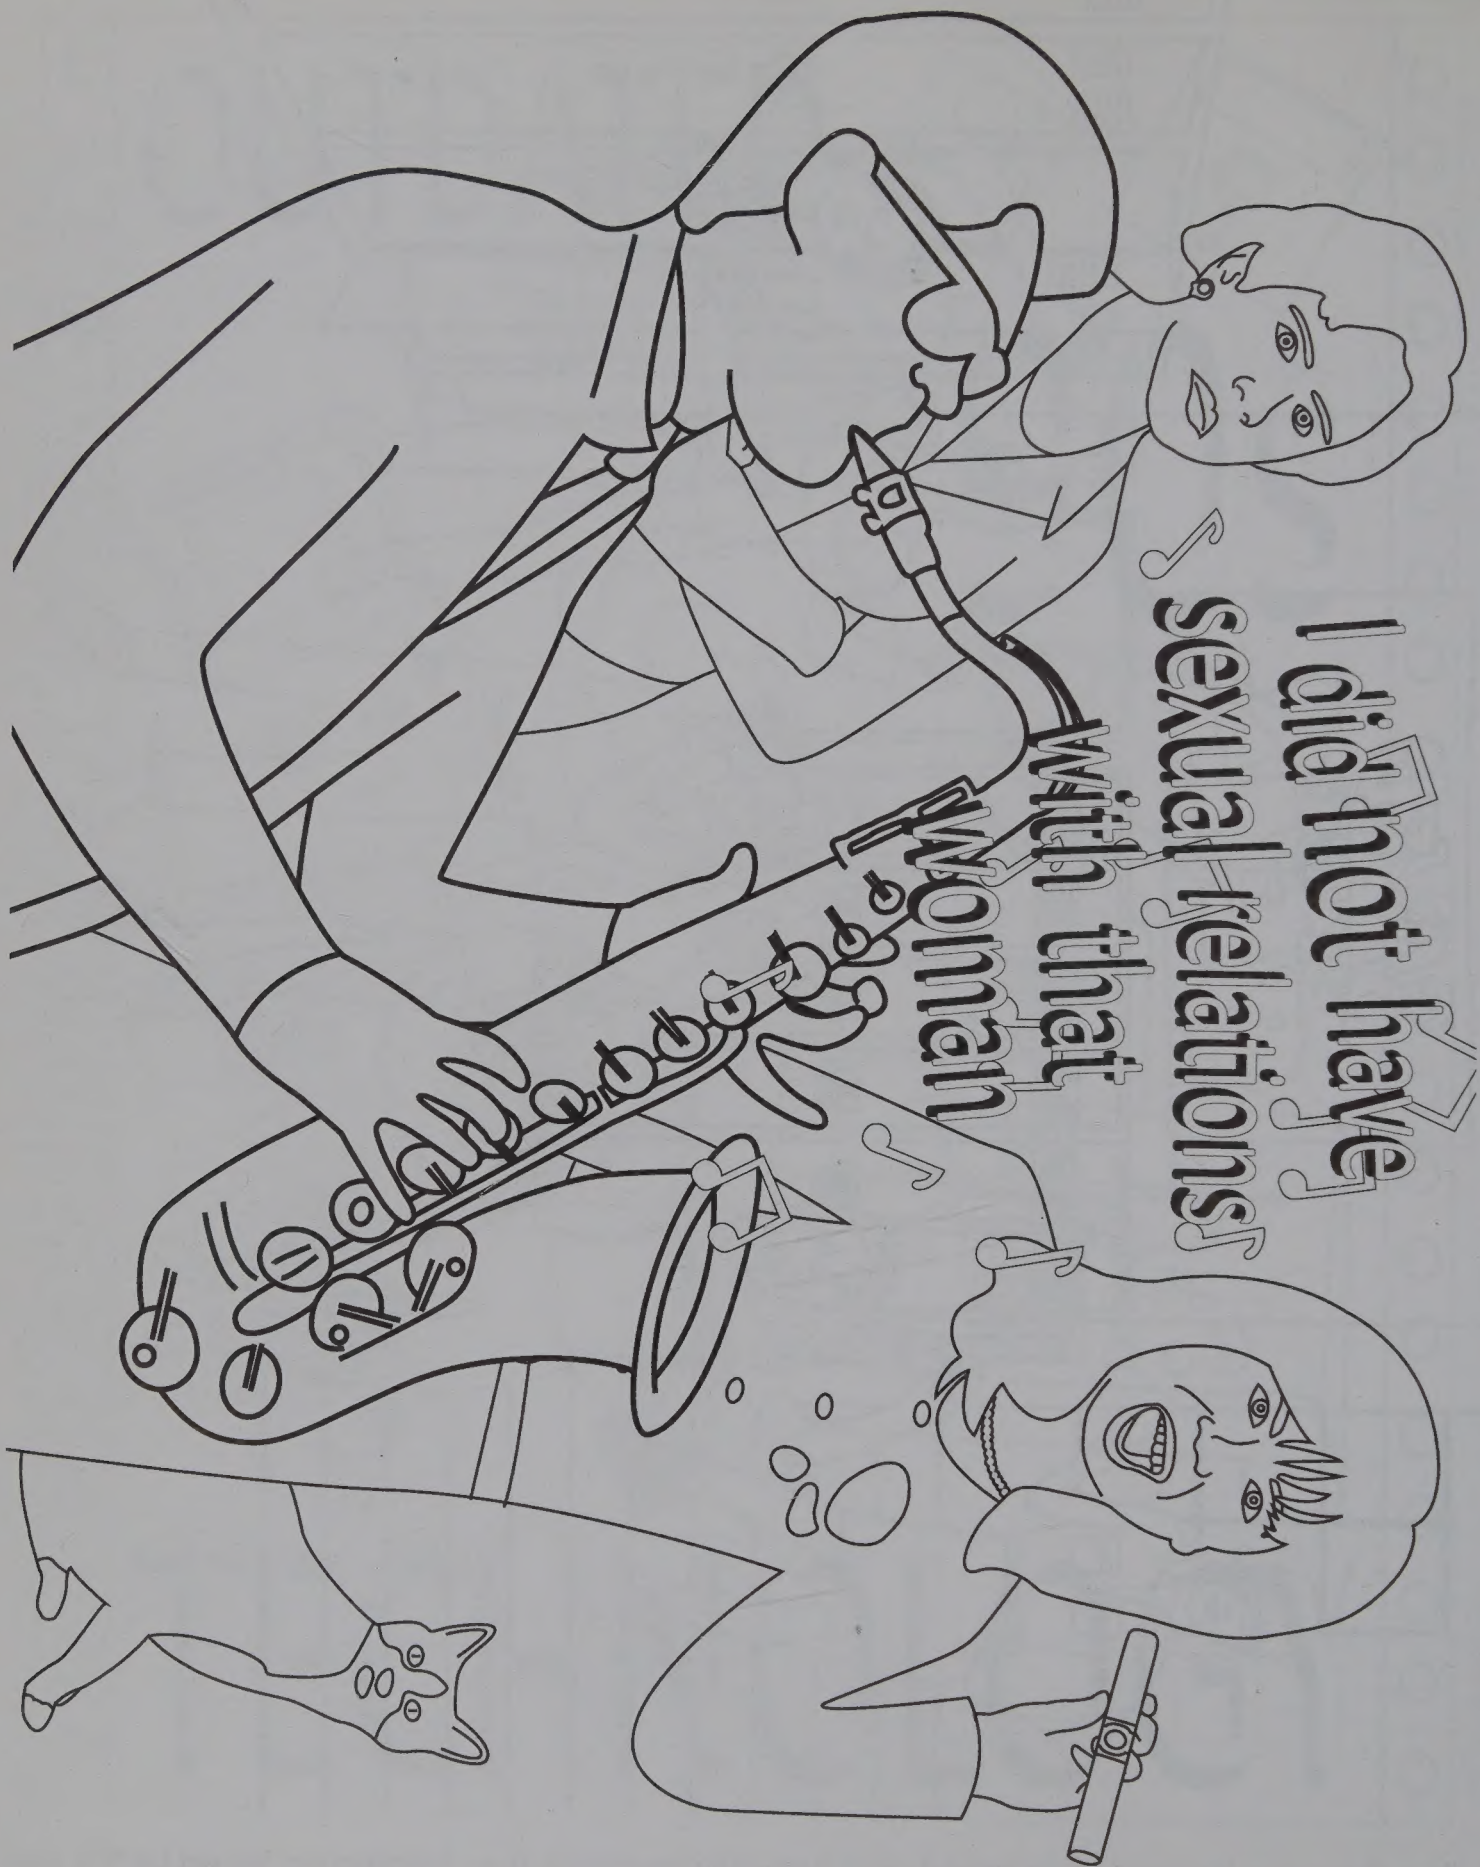

TECHNOLOGY

Sayonara, technology of the past. We're going old-school with these floppy disks, VHS tapes, Discmans, bulky mobile phones, and fax machines that didn't make it out of the '90s.

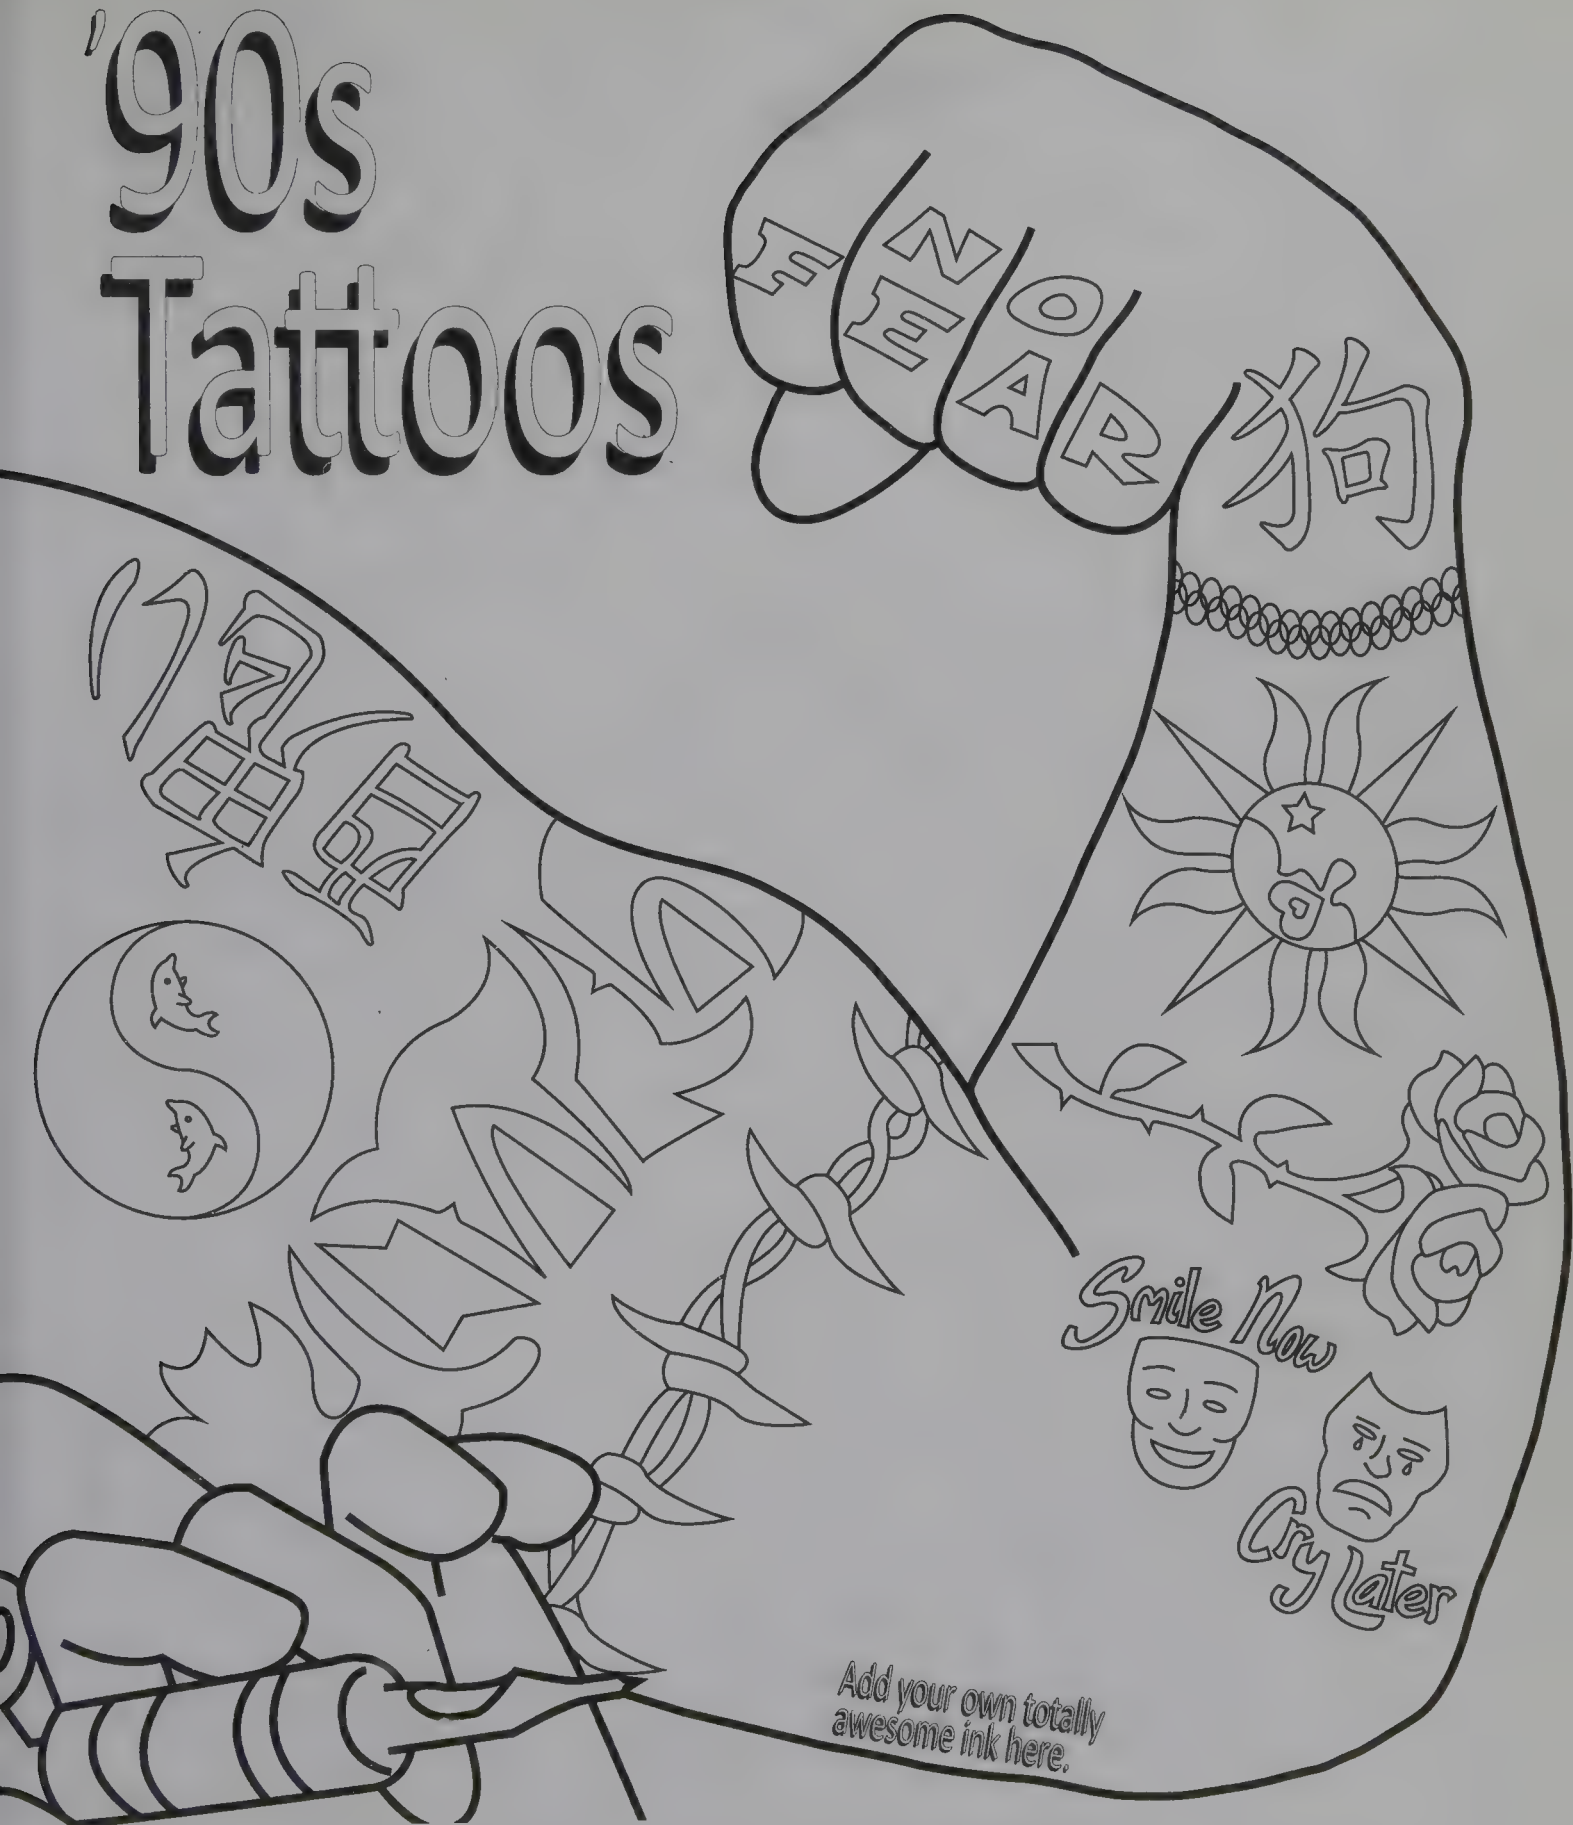

Was there any better way to spend your Saturday mornings than flipping on Saved by the Bell and chowin' down cereal while still in your pajamas? Not likely, preppie. Fun fact: To maintain Zach Morris's blond look, Mark-Paul Gosselaar was required to dye his hair every couple weeks for nearly six years.

President Clinton was one of the first presidents to become tabloid fodder and face celebrity scrutiny. He often appeared on the late-night talk shows, and his late-'90s sex scandal with Monica Lewinsky was headline news.

'90s Tattoos

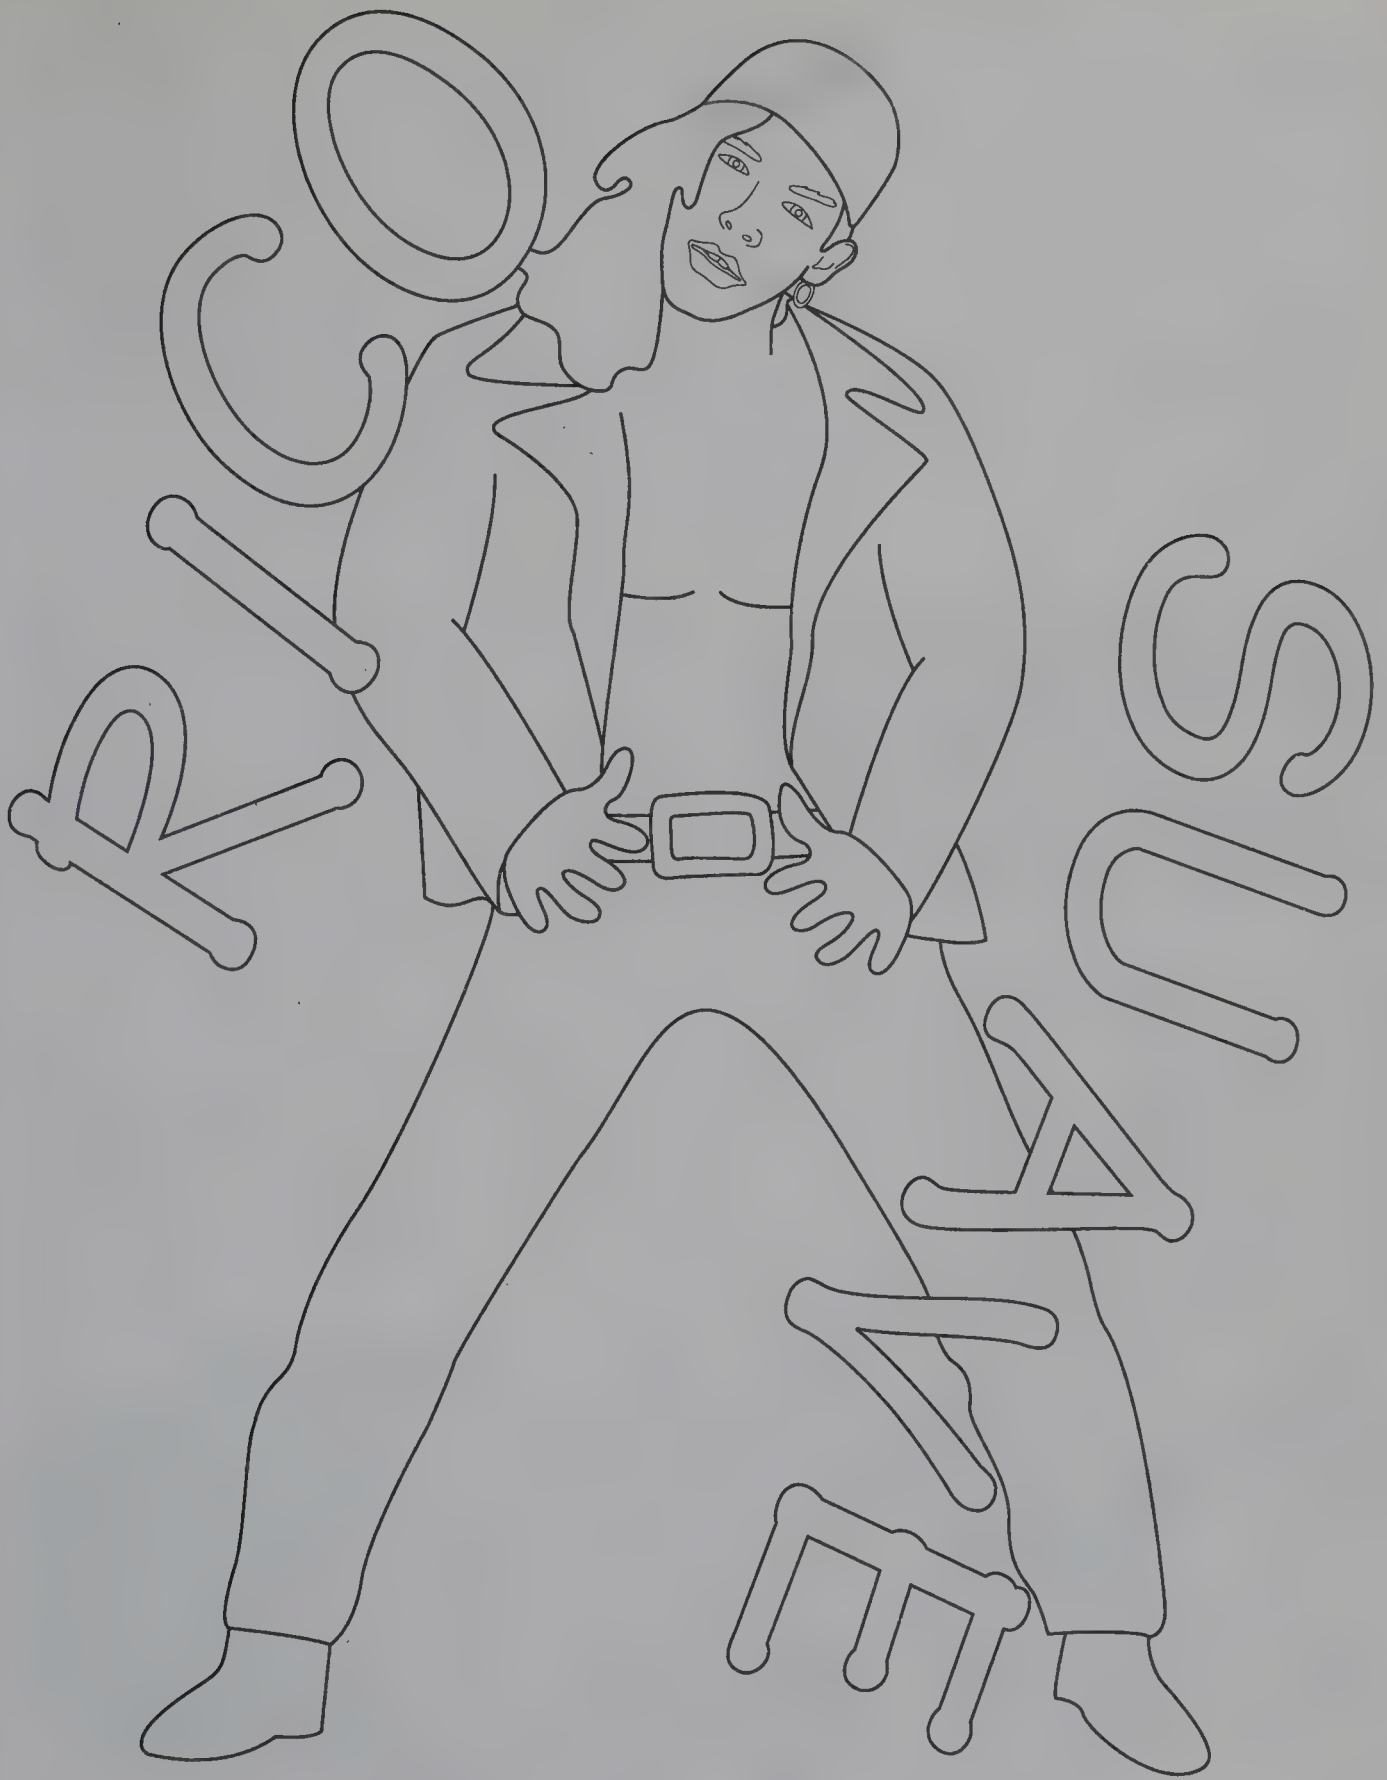

Add your own totally

Quit trippin' over my tattoo! Body art (such as tattoos and piercings) became much more common in the '90s, partly due to a lift on a 36-year ban on tattoo parlors in NYC, as well as the popularity of the indie and grunge scenes.

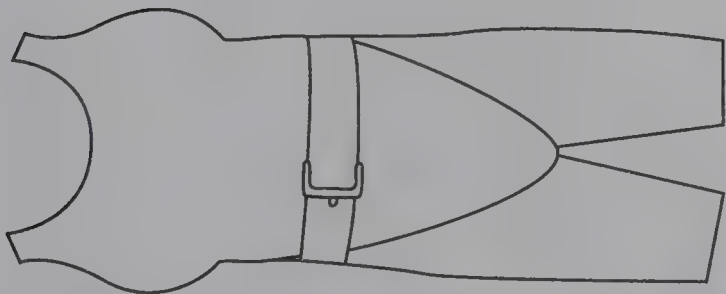

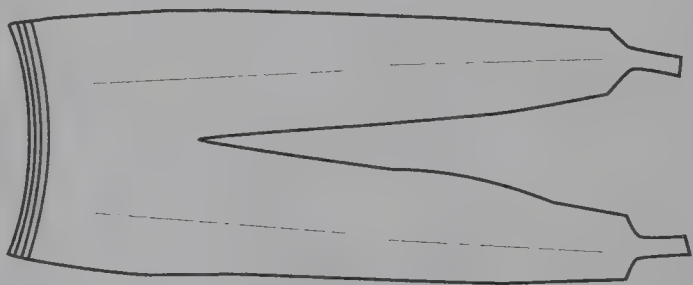

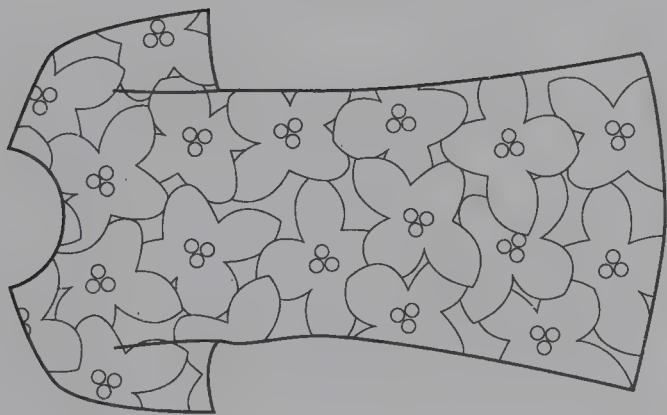

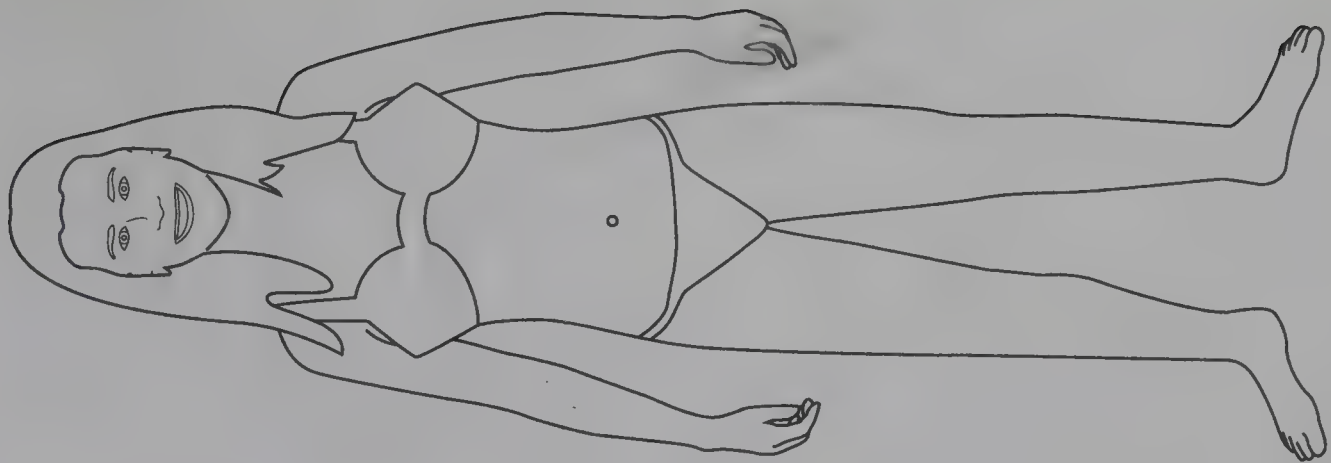

The Feud: Bad Boy Records, The Notorious B.I.G., and Diddy versus Death Row Records, Tupac Shakur and Suge Knight. The East Coast–West Coast hip-hop rivalry held many headlines in entertainment news, most prominently when both Biggie and 2Pac were gunned down in drive-by shootings. We'll be missing you.

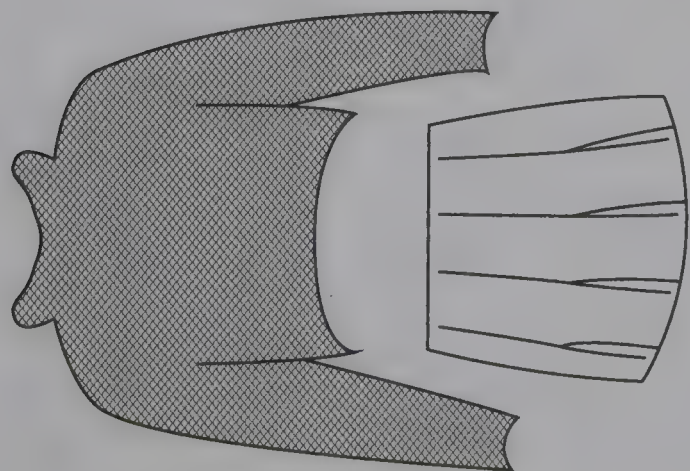

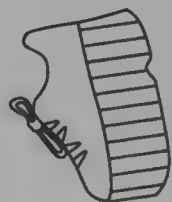

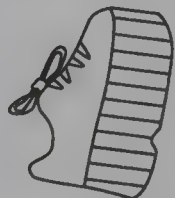

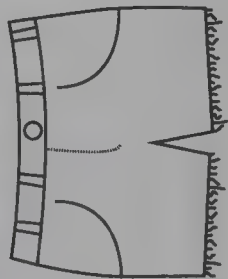

Gerardo's bilingual single "Rico Suave" peaked at #7 on the Billboard Hot 100 in 1991. The following year it inspired a parody called "Taco Grande" by "Weird Al" Yankovic—boo ya!

Flannel shirts. Schoolgirl miniskirts. Baggy overalls. Platform shoes. No matter your style, your outfit was always dope.

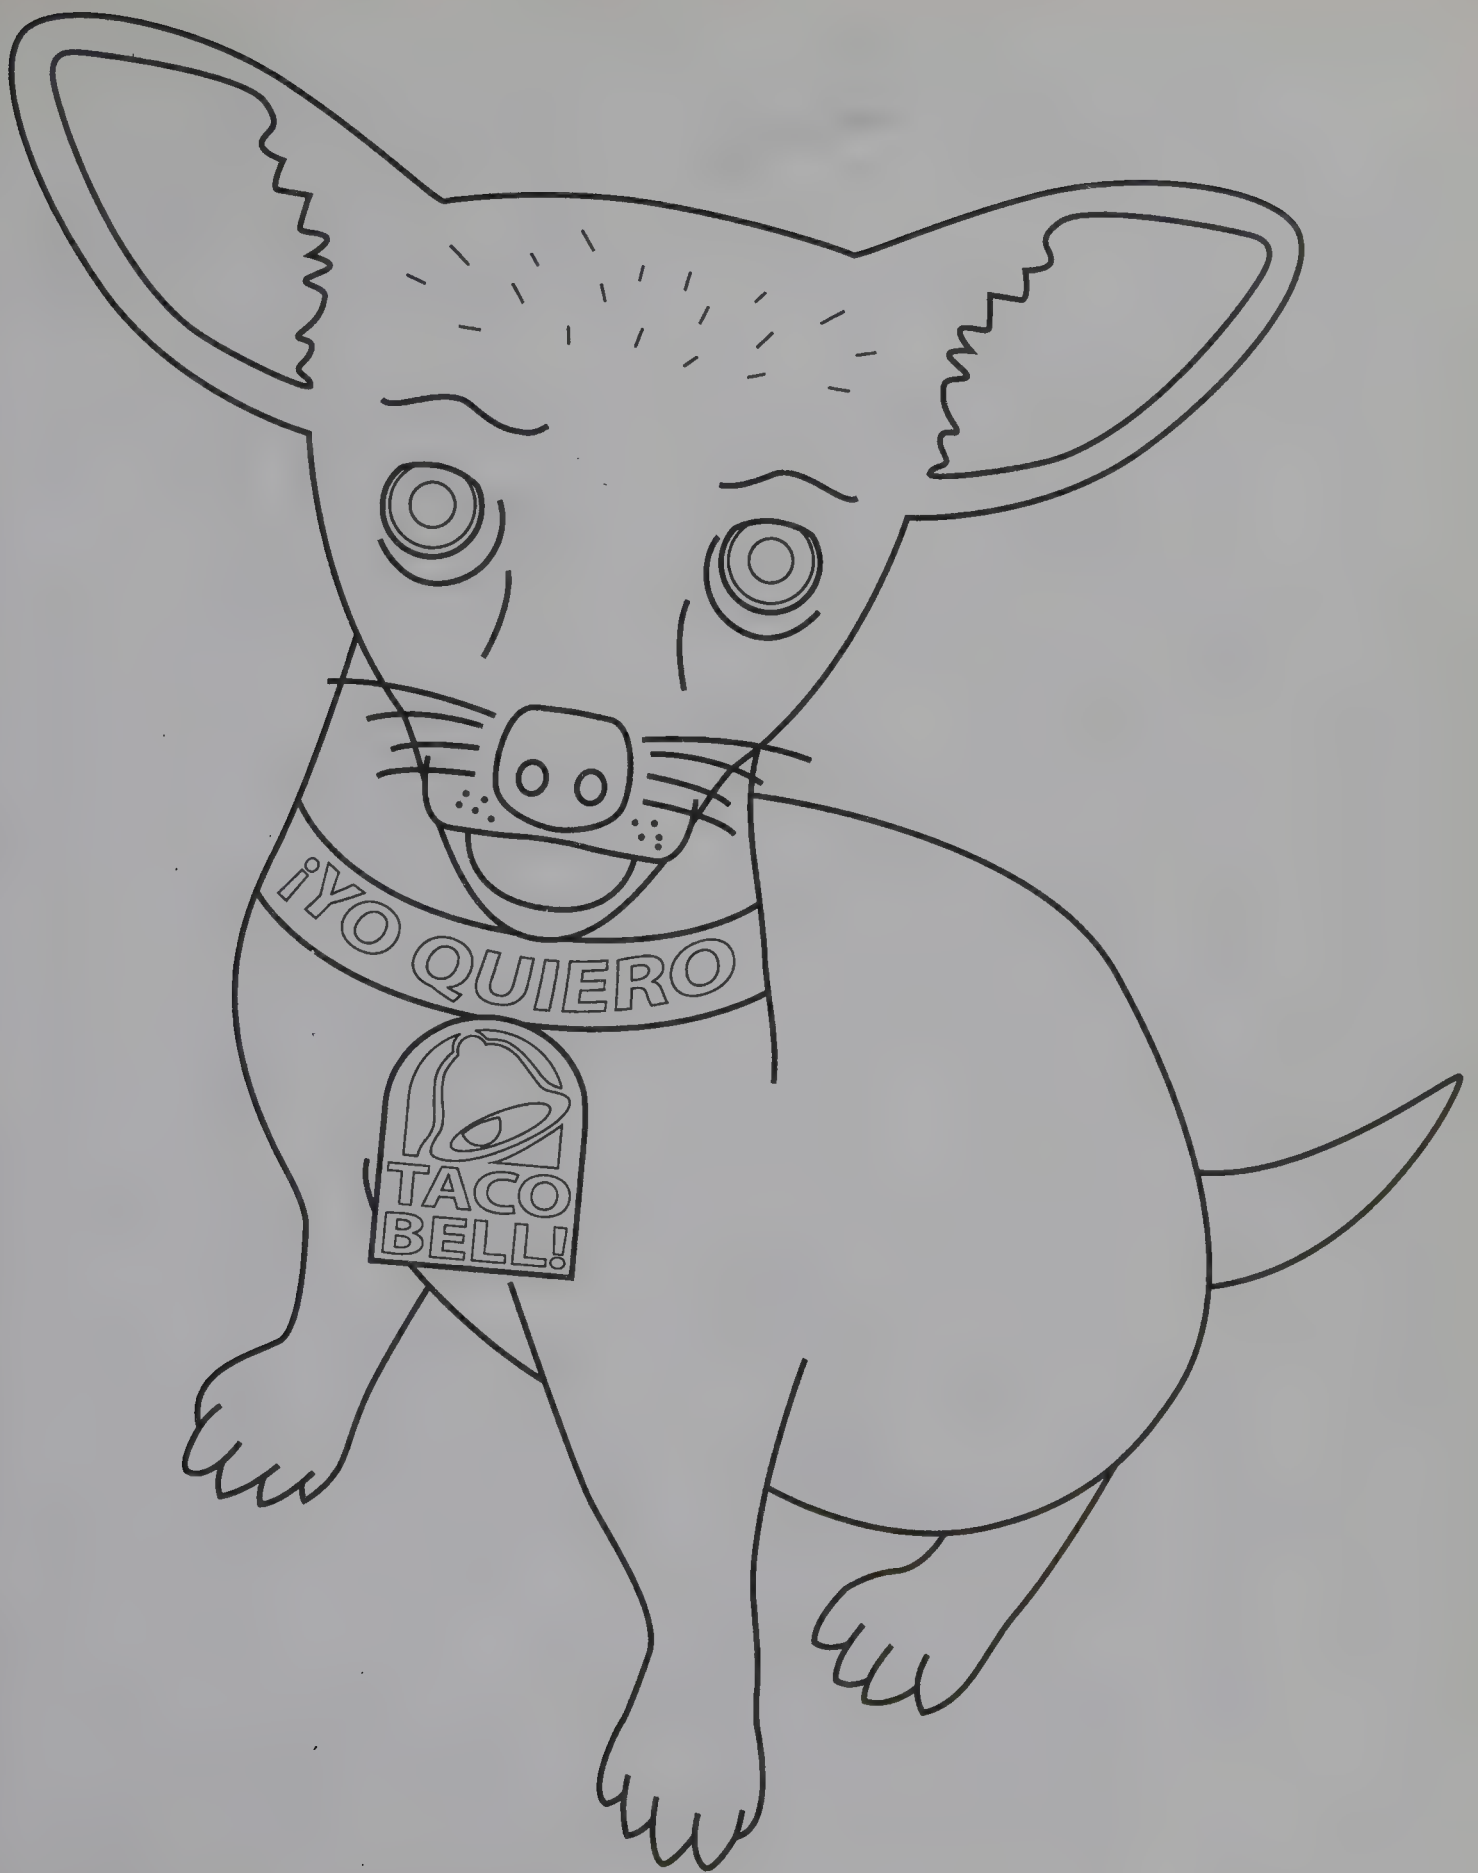

SEHLOTH CLOTHES

Get out! Seinfeld was one of the most popular TV shows of the '90s—and of all time. More than 76.3 million viewers tuned in to the 1998 series finale—that's real and it's spectacular.

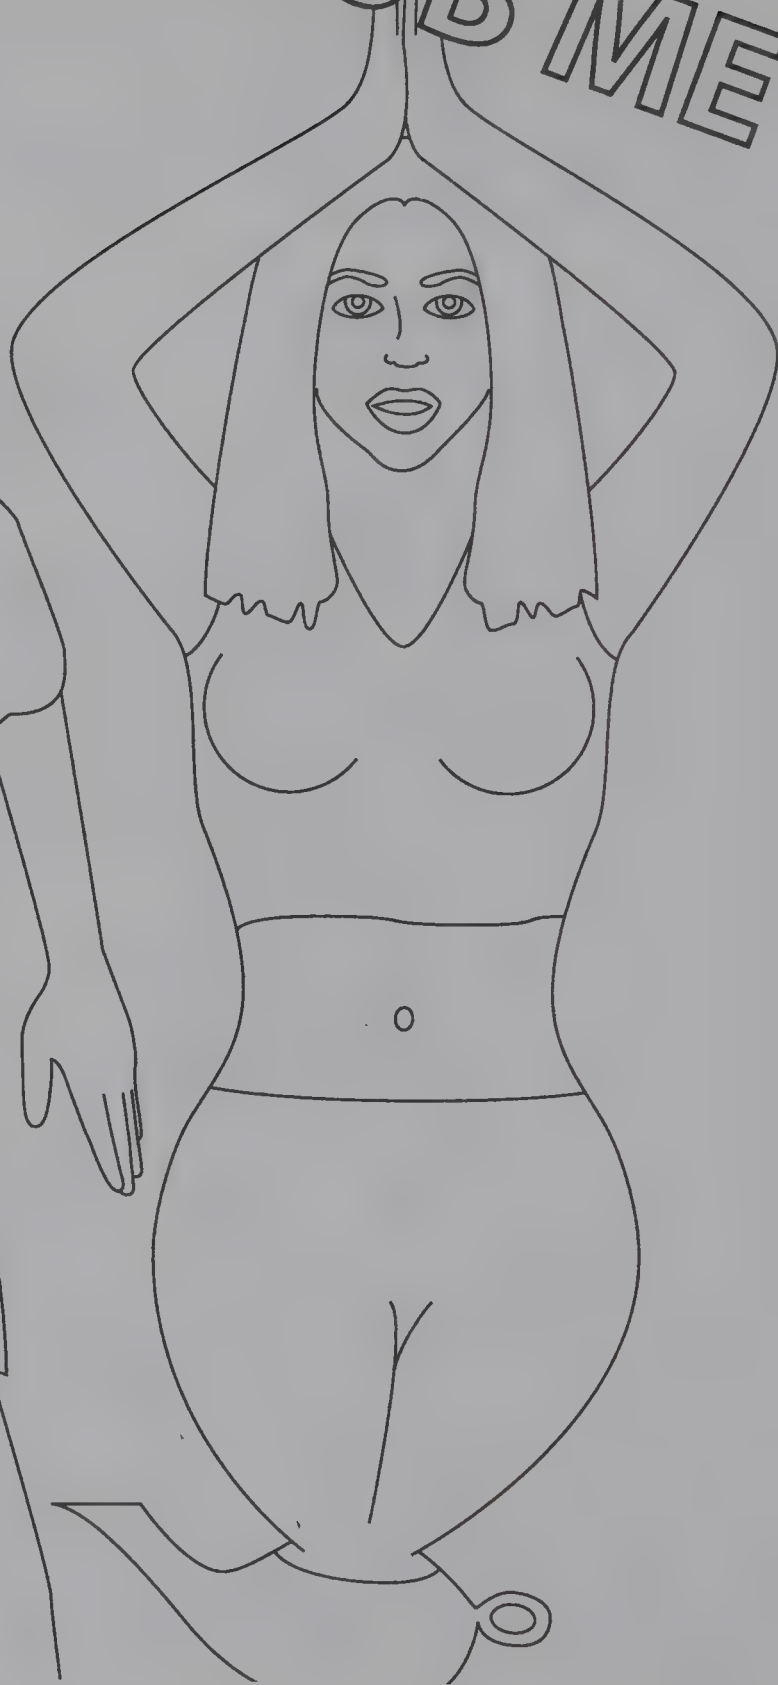

Gidget the Taco Bell Chihuahua first appeared as the fast-food chain's advertising mascot in 1998, and her catchphrase "¡Yo quiero Taco Bell!" would become a pop culture sensation.

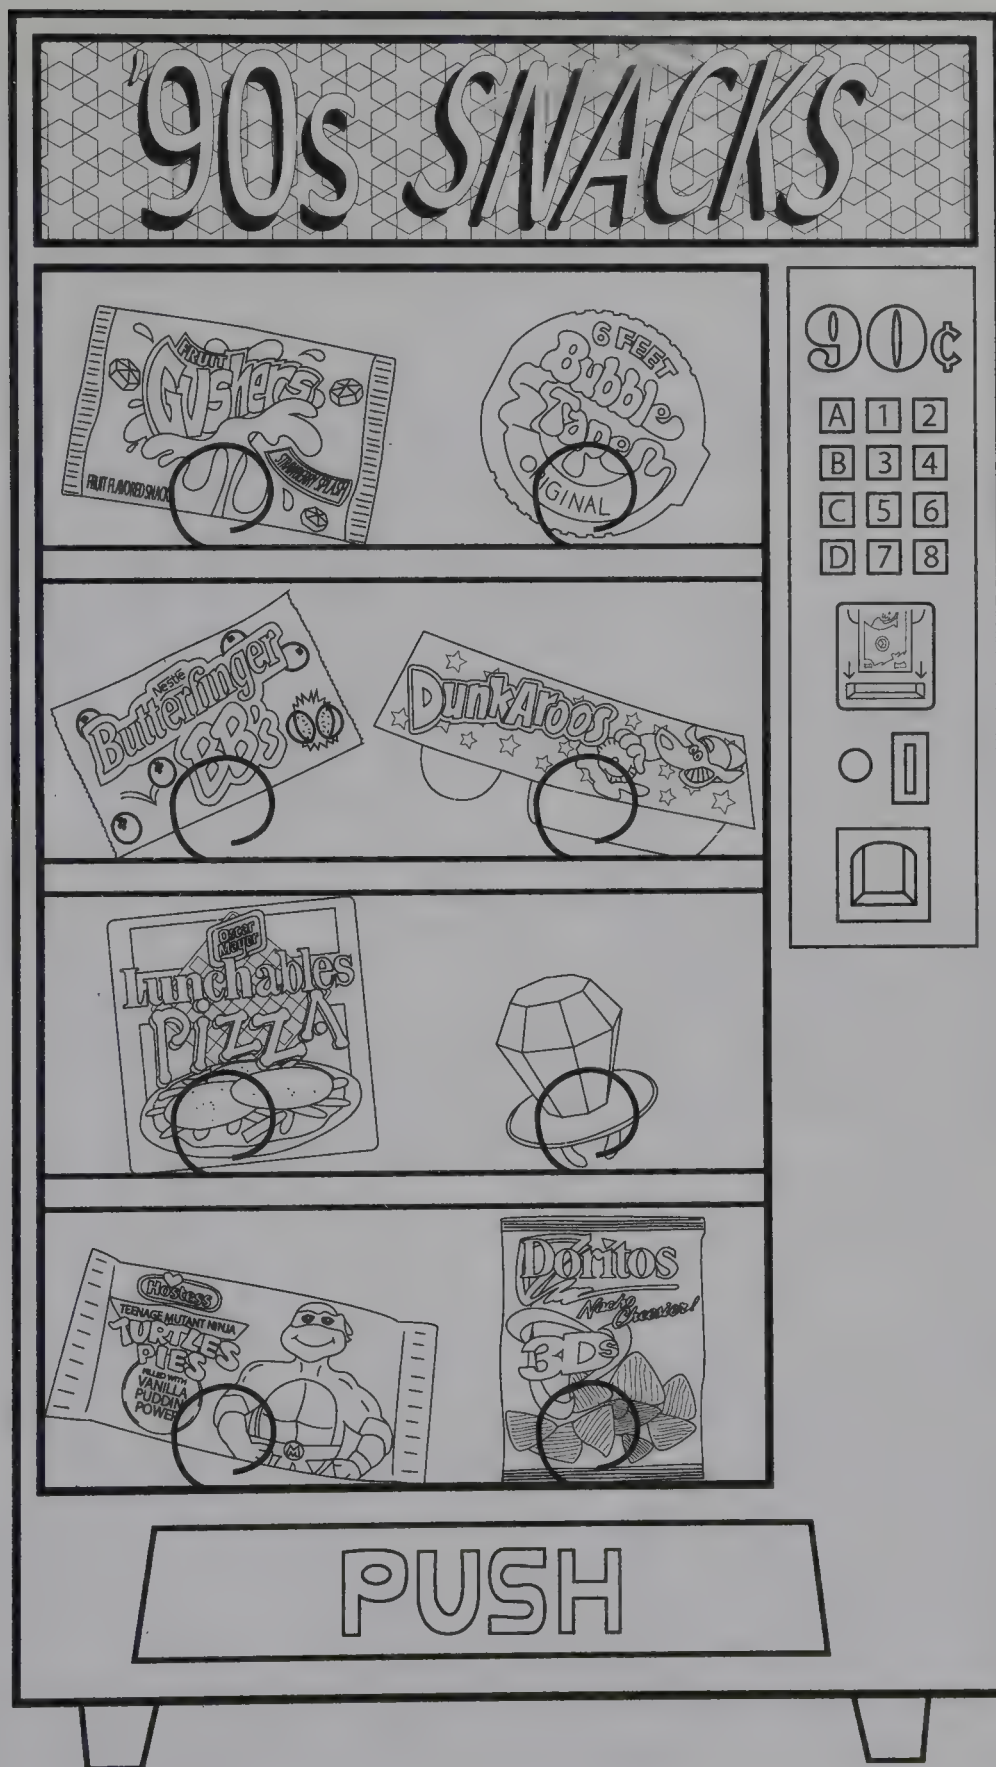

HIT ME

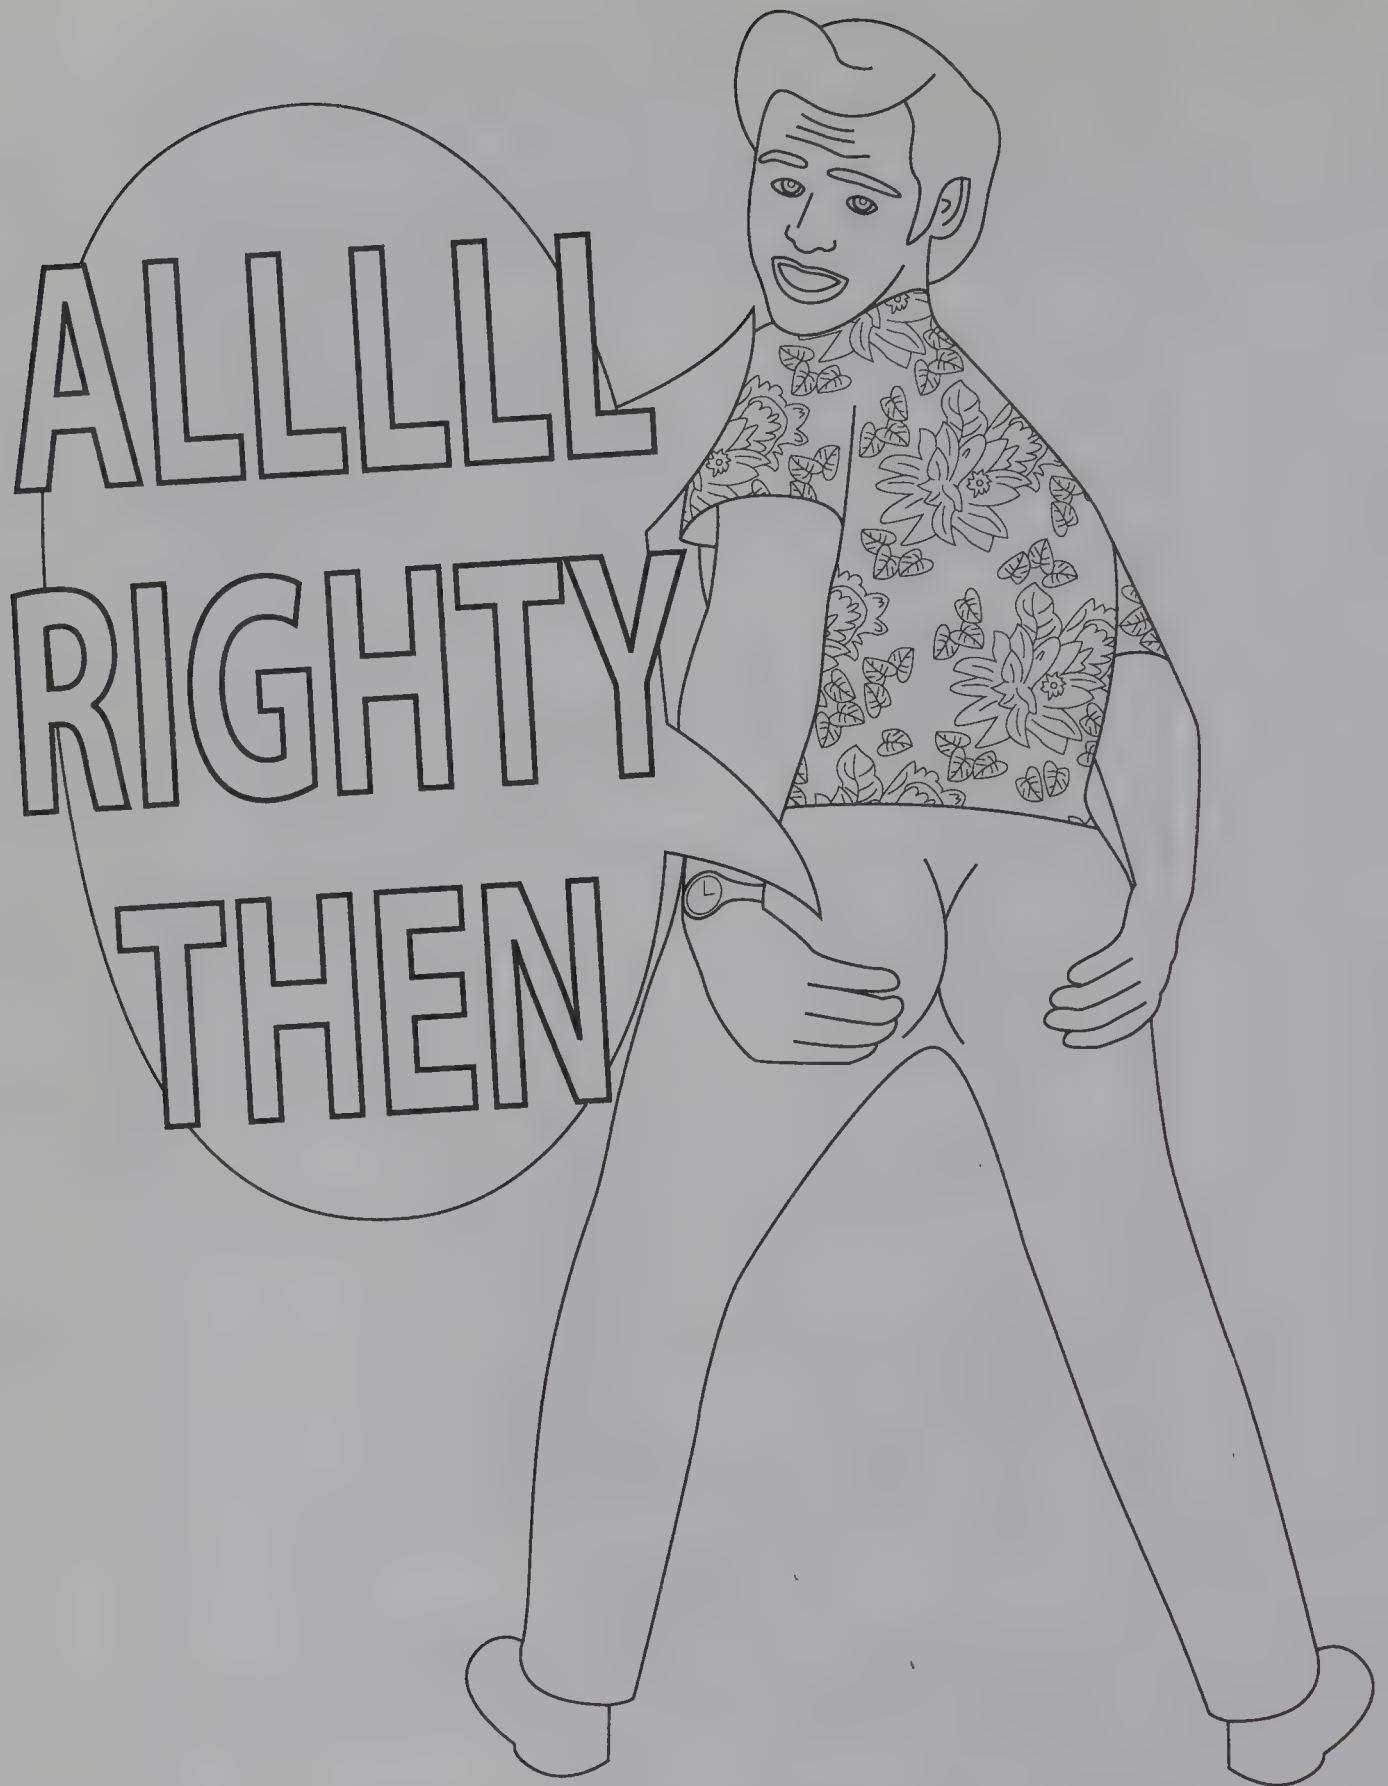

RUB ME

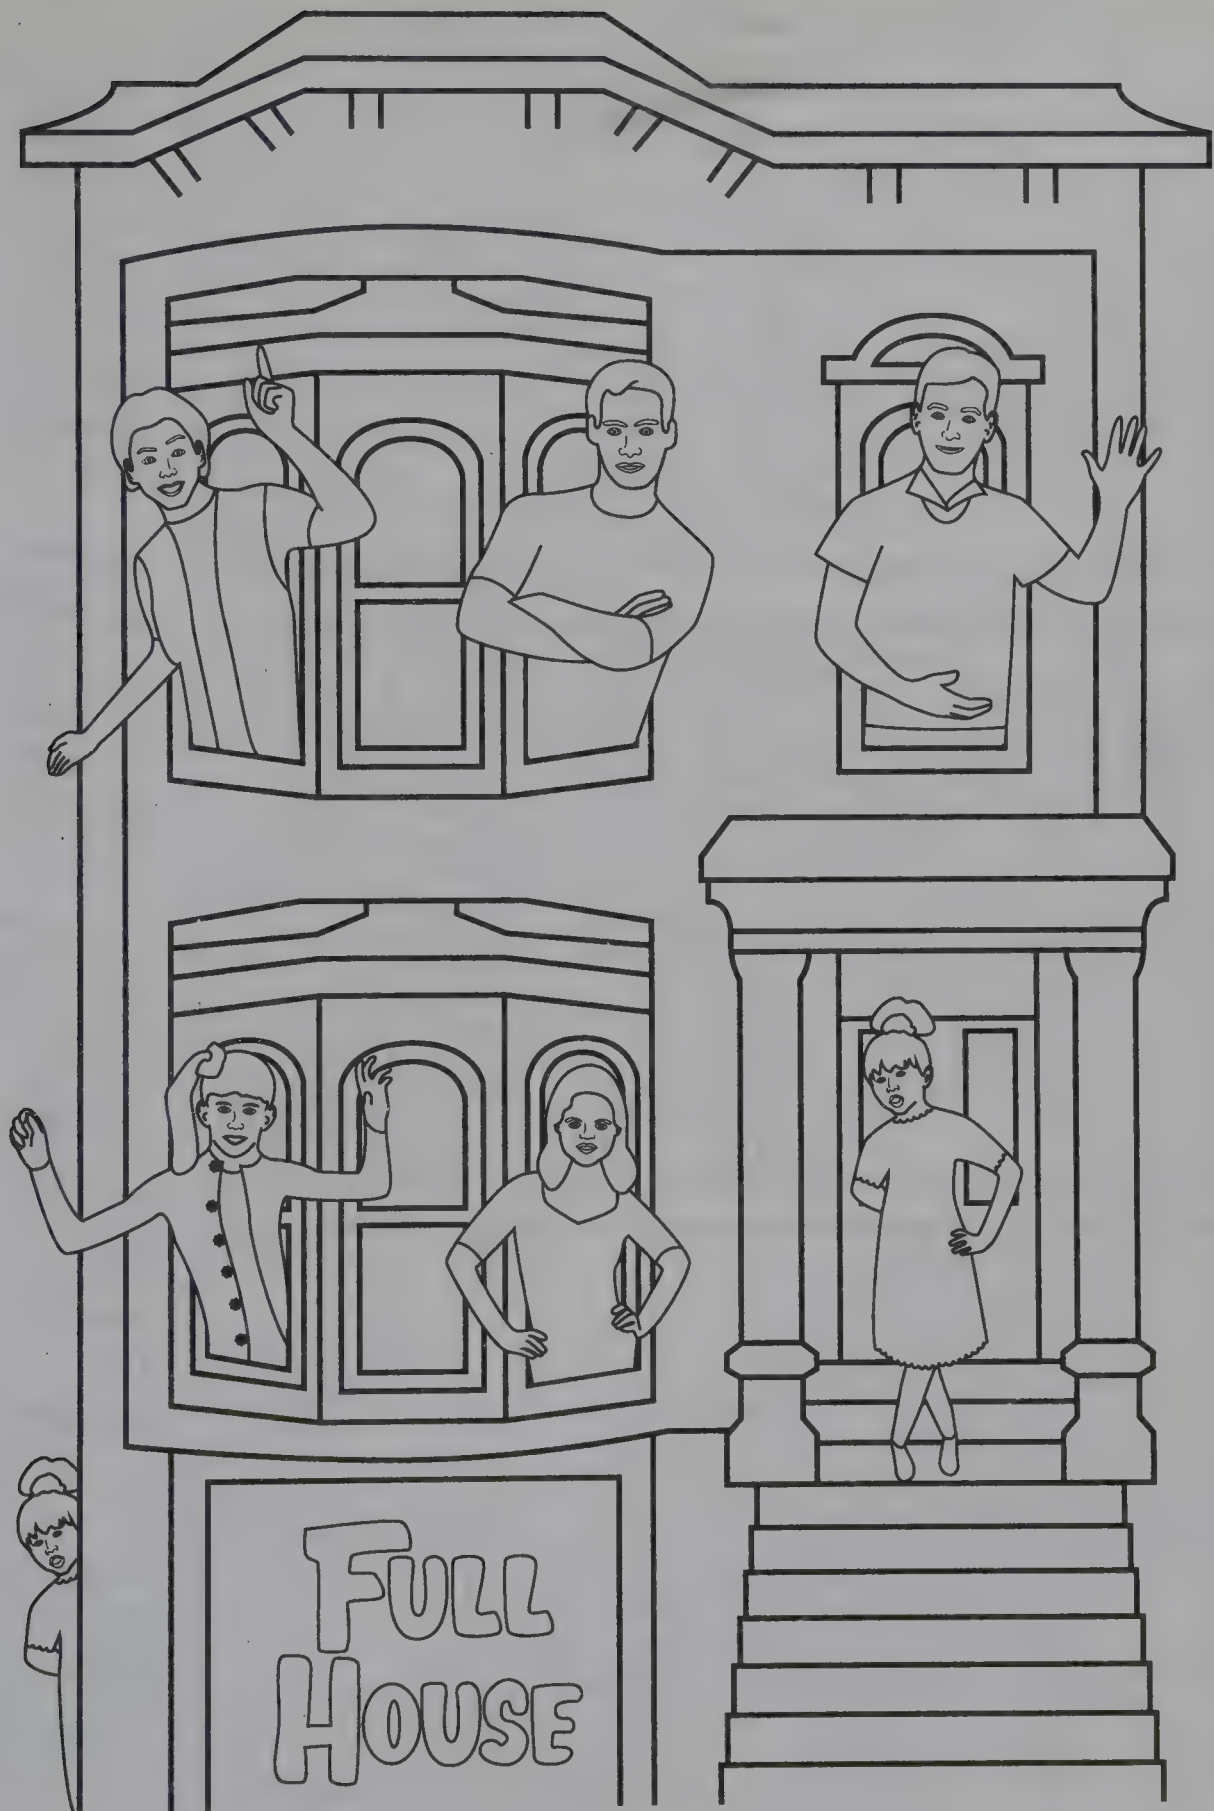

Though they were often pitted against each other, pop princesses Britney and Christina have proven with decade-long careers that there's room for both divas at the top.

In 1992, more than 400 new savory snack products hit shelves, candy sales went up after earlier declines, and cookie/cracker manufacturing was the fastest-growing segment of the bakery industry. The 1990s also saw the resurgence in popularity of some old snack favorites, such as Ring Pops. Which tasty treat were you most excited to find packed in your lunchbox?

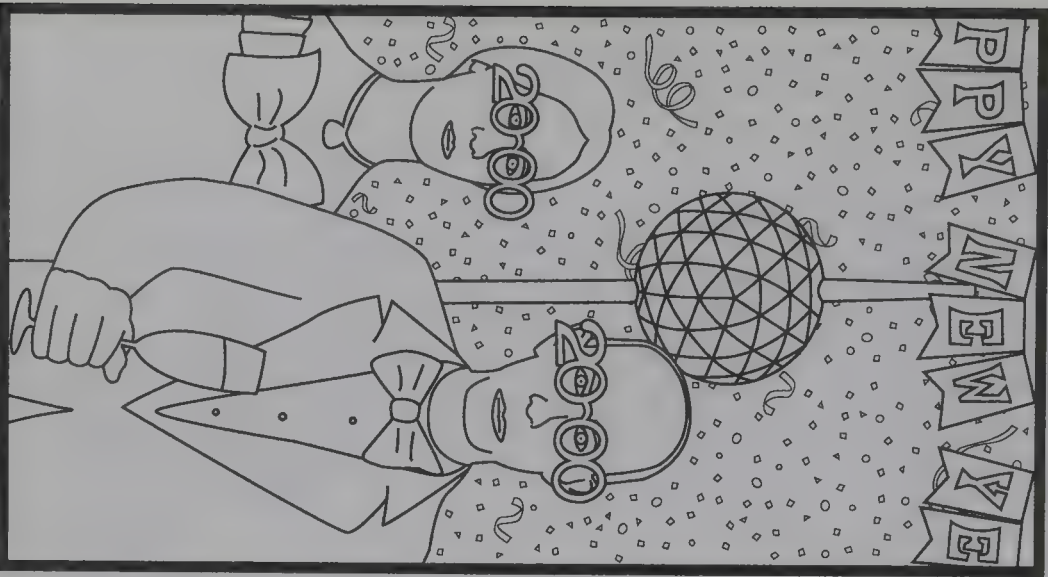

Jim Carrey's approach to portraying Ace Ventura was the same as Anthony Hopkin's character Hannibal Lector. Both moved liked animals—Ventura as a bird and Lector as a reptile. Alllll righty then!

Things that happened in almost every Full House episode: Joey did an impression. Jesse talked about his hair. Danny cleaned. Stephanie exhibited symptoms of middle-child syndrome. Michelle dropped a catchphrase. And Kimmy entered the house without knocking.

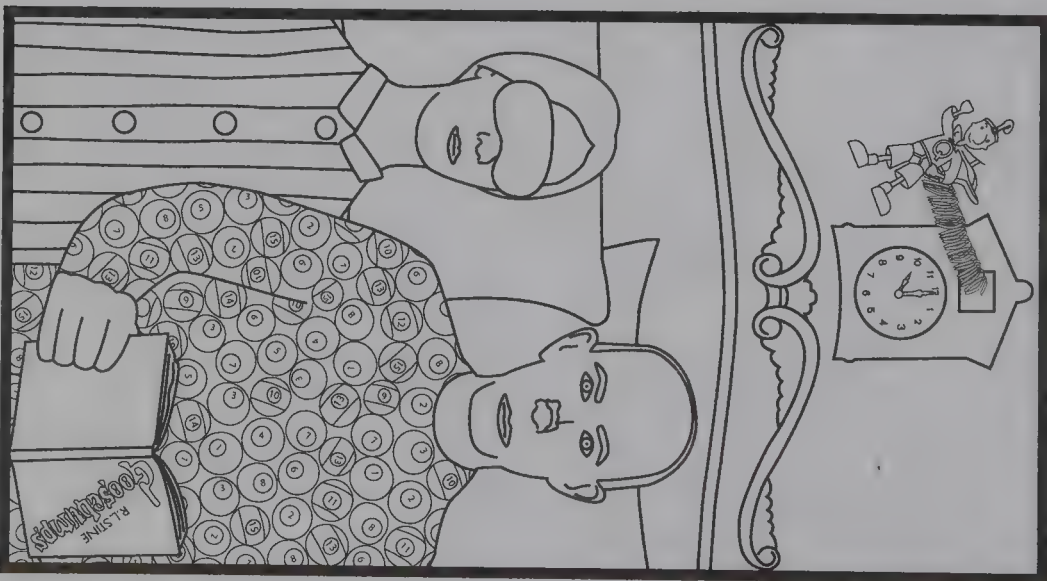

Where Were You for Y2K?!

At a Party

In a Bunker

Asleep by 10

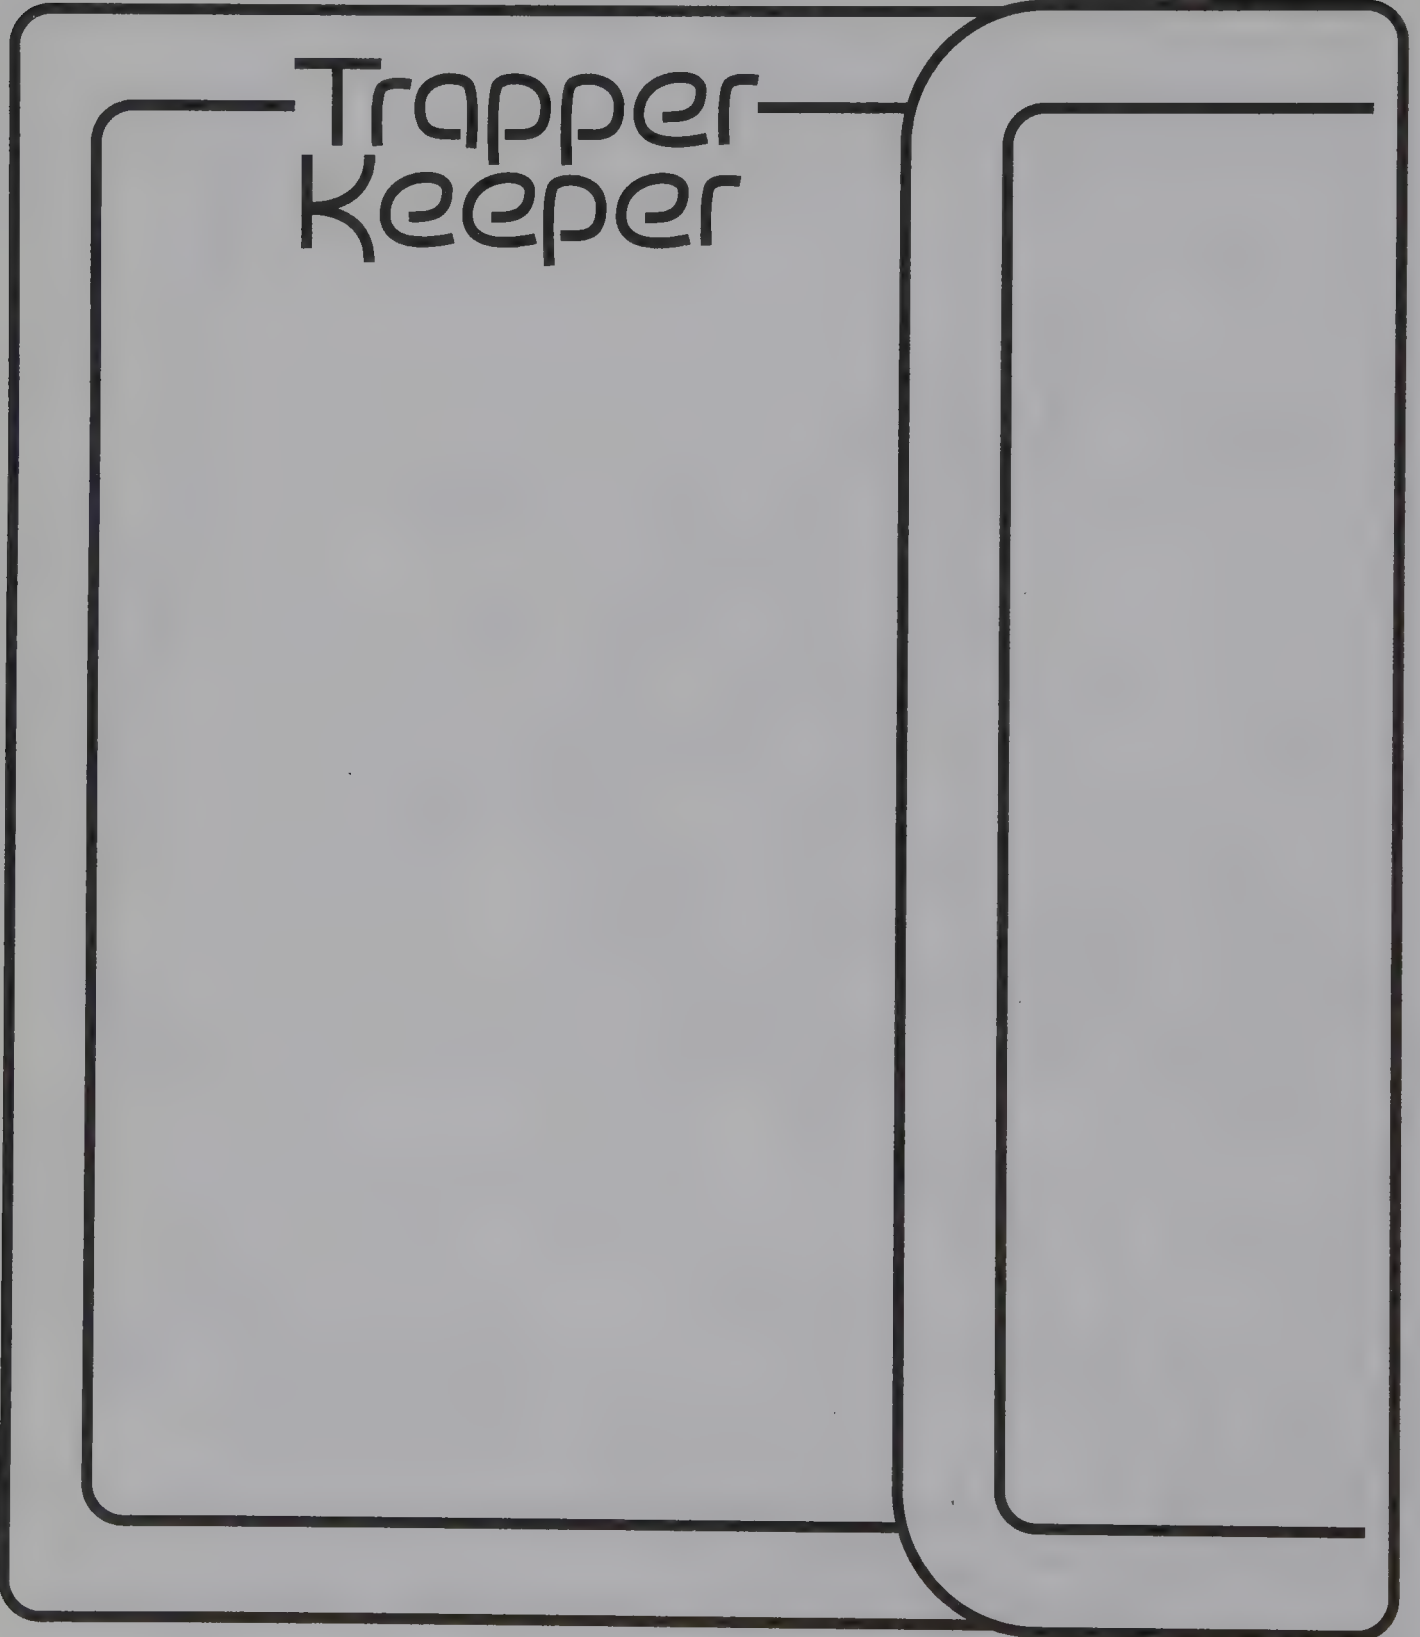

The cost of work done to prepare for Y2K is estimated at more than $300 billion worldwide. The U.S. spent about $134 billion in preparation, and another $13 billion fixing problems in 2000 and 2001. That's a lot of cheddar!

At its peak, Rollerblading was a $200 million industry and boasted more than 29 million owners. But by the 2000s, the number of bladers plummeted drastically. Lame sauce!

Design Your Own '90s...

Trapper
Keeper

This popular brand of binders featured all kinds of phat designs during the 1990s that made them more than just school supplies, but school essentials.

The One with the F.R.I.E.N.D.S Matching Game

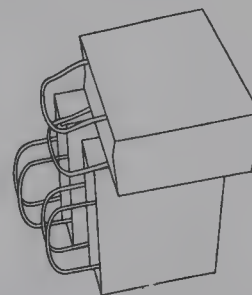

I studied karate for a long time, and there's a concept you should really be familiar with. It's what the Japanese call Unagi.

I mean, isn't that just kick-you-in-the-crotch, spit-on-your-neck fantastic?

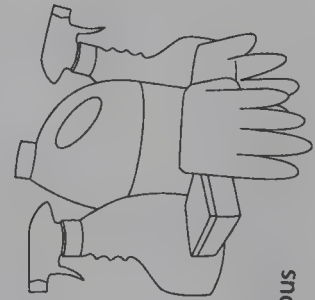

Smelly Cat, Smelly cat what are they feeding you? Smelly Cat, Smelly Cat it's not your fault...

I can handle it. Handle is my middle name. Well, actually, it's the middle part of my first name.

What I do is, I look a woman up and down and I say, How you doin'?

Now, everybody knows the basic erogenous zones. You've got one, two, three... four... five... six and seven. Seven. Seven. Seven! Seven!

Mark McGwire and Sammy Sosa were on fire in 1998! Both MLB players raced to break the single-season home run record of 61. Since then, McGwire has admitted to using performance-enhancing drugs while Sosa is suspected of using, but has always denied the claims. Don't punk us, guys.

MUSIC

"Rap, metal, rap, metal, Whitney Houston." Empire Records is one of the many cult-classic films from the '90s that has only gotten better with age.

It's Morphin' Time! Mighty Morphin Power Rangers debuted on August 28, 1993. Since then, numerous spin-offs have aired continuously on TV with new casts and story lines. Talk about one Morphinomenal show.

HYPERCOLOR This Tee

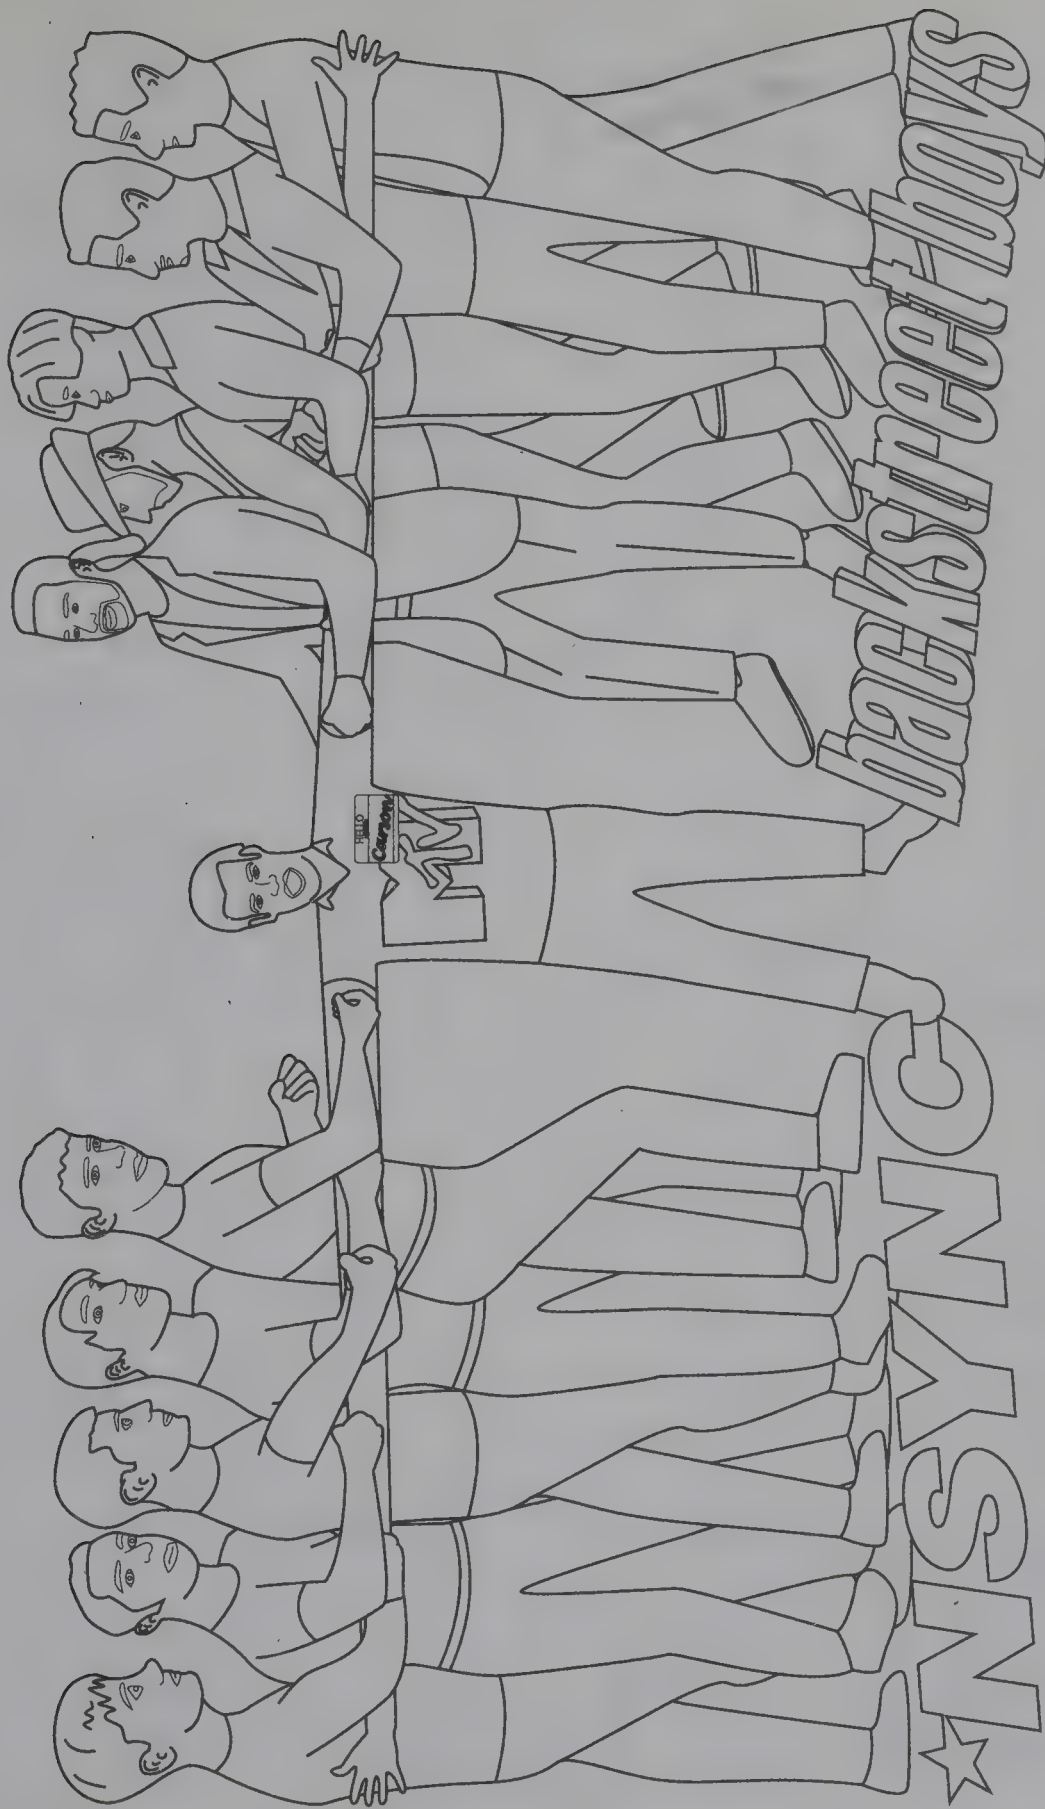

Introduced by Generra Sportswear Co. Inc. in 1991, the Hypercolor clothing line used fabrics dyed with thermochromic inks that would temporarily change colors when exposed to an increased temperature such as body heat. Pretty awesome, unless you had a sweat problem. Awkward!

6 DEGREES OF KEVIN BACON

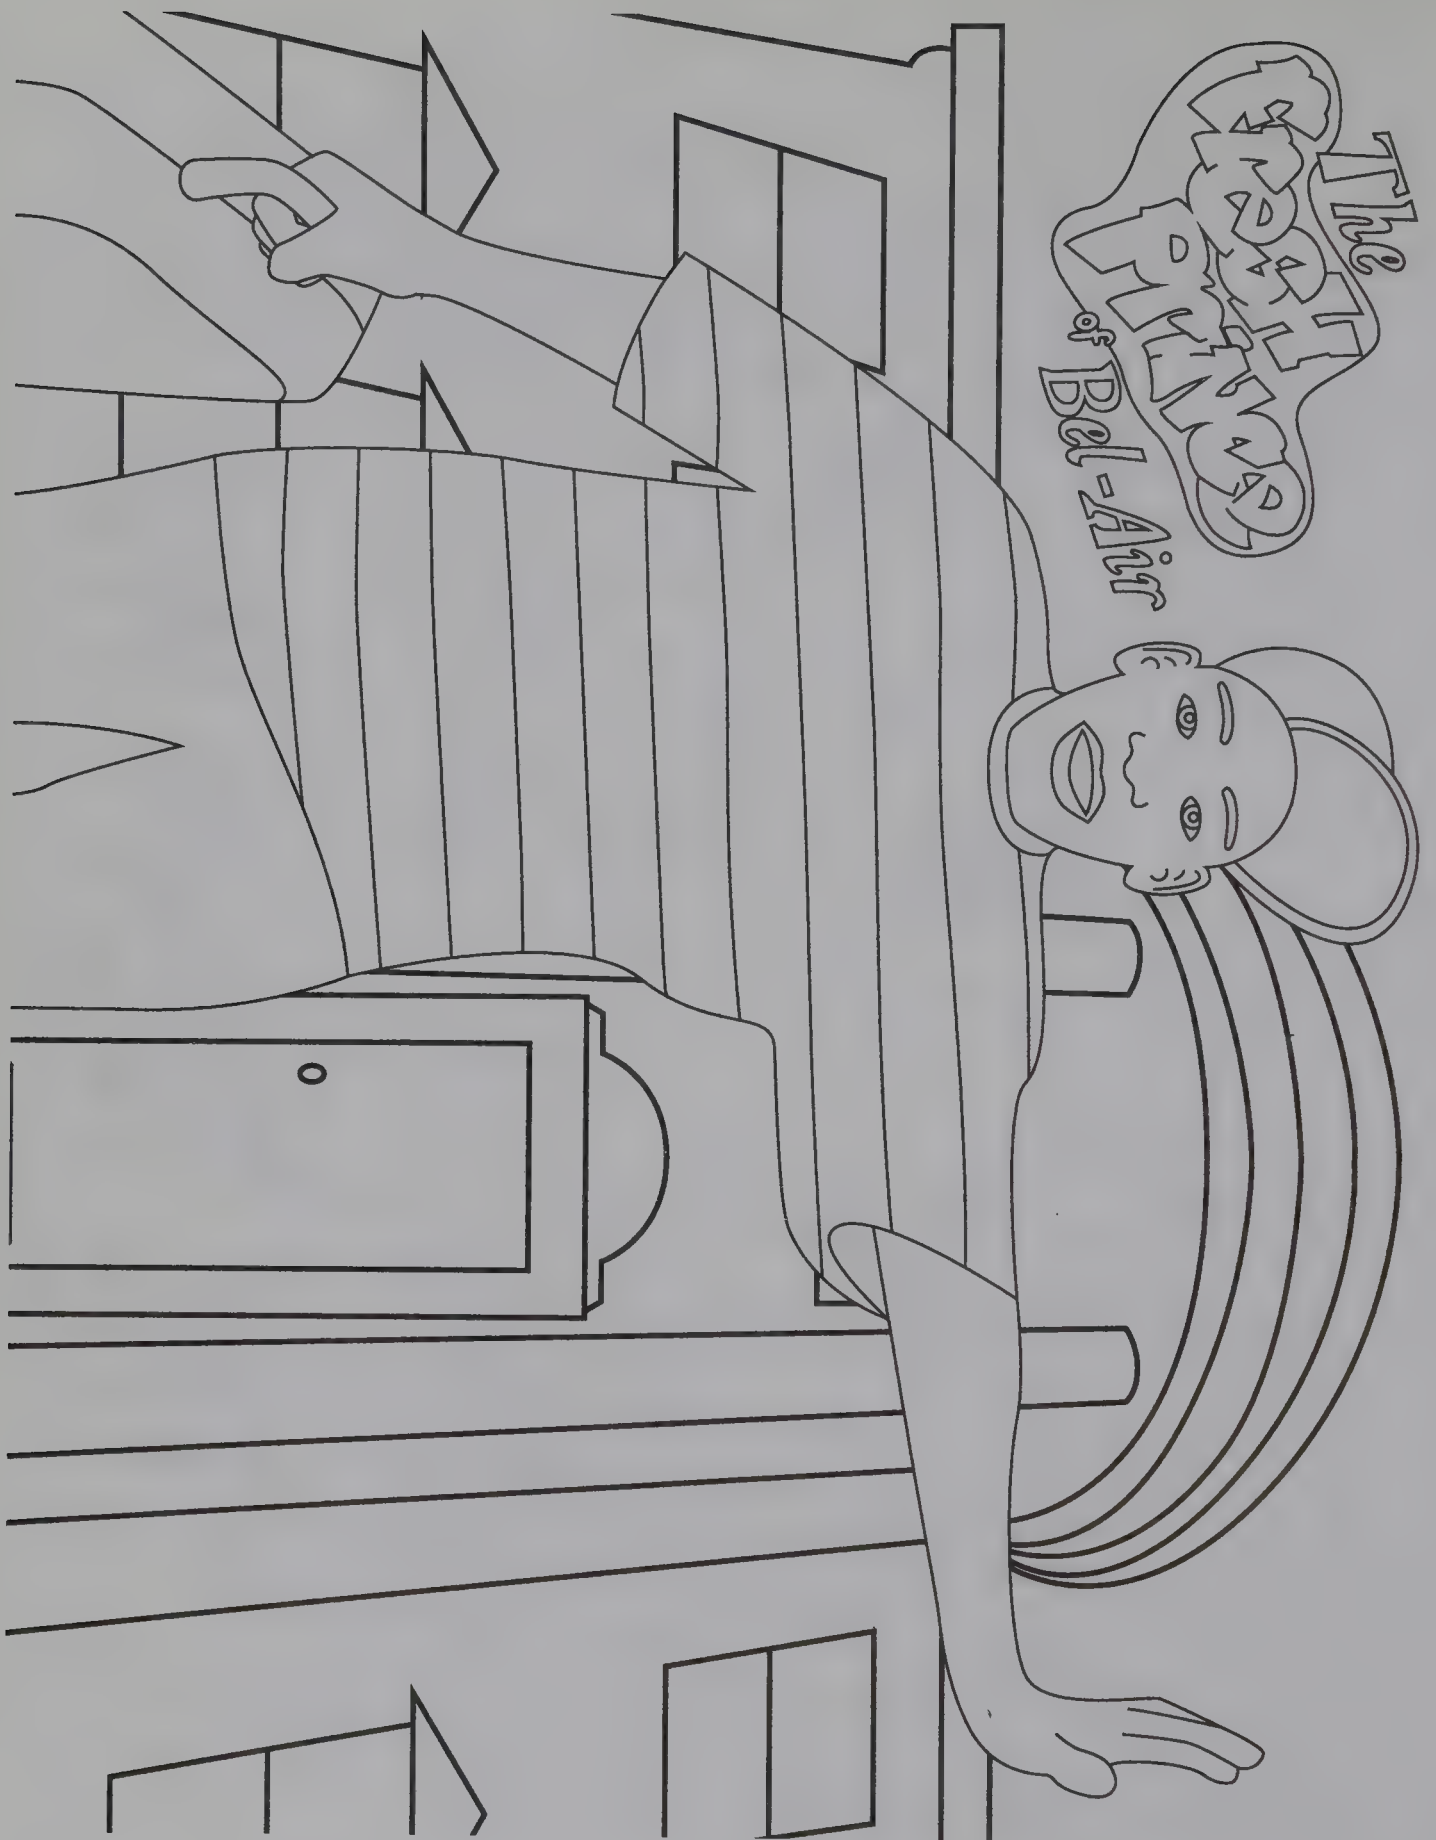

That Kevin Bacon is a rad dude. He took Six Degrees of Kevin Bacon, the movie game that connects any Hollywood star to the actor within six steps, into a charitable social network. You go, Kevin Bacon!

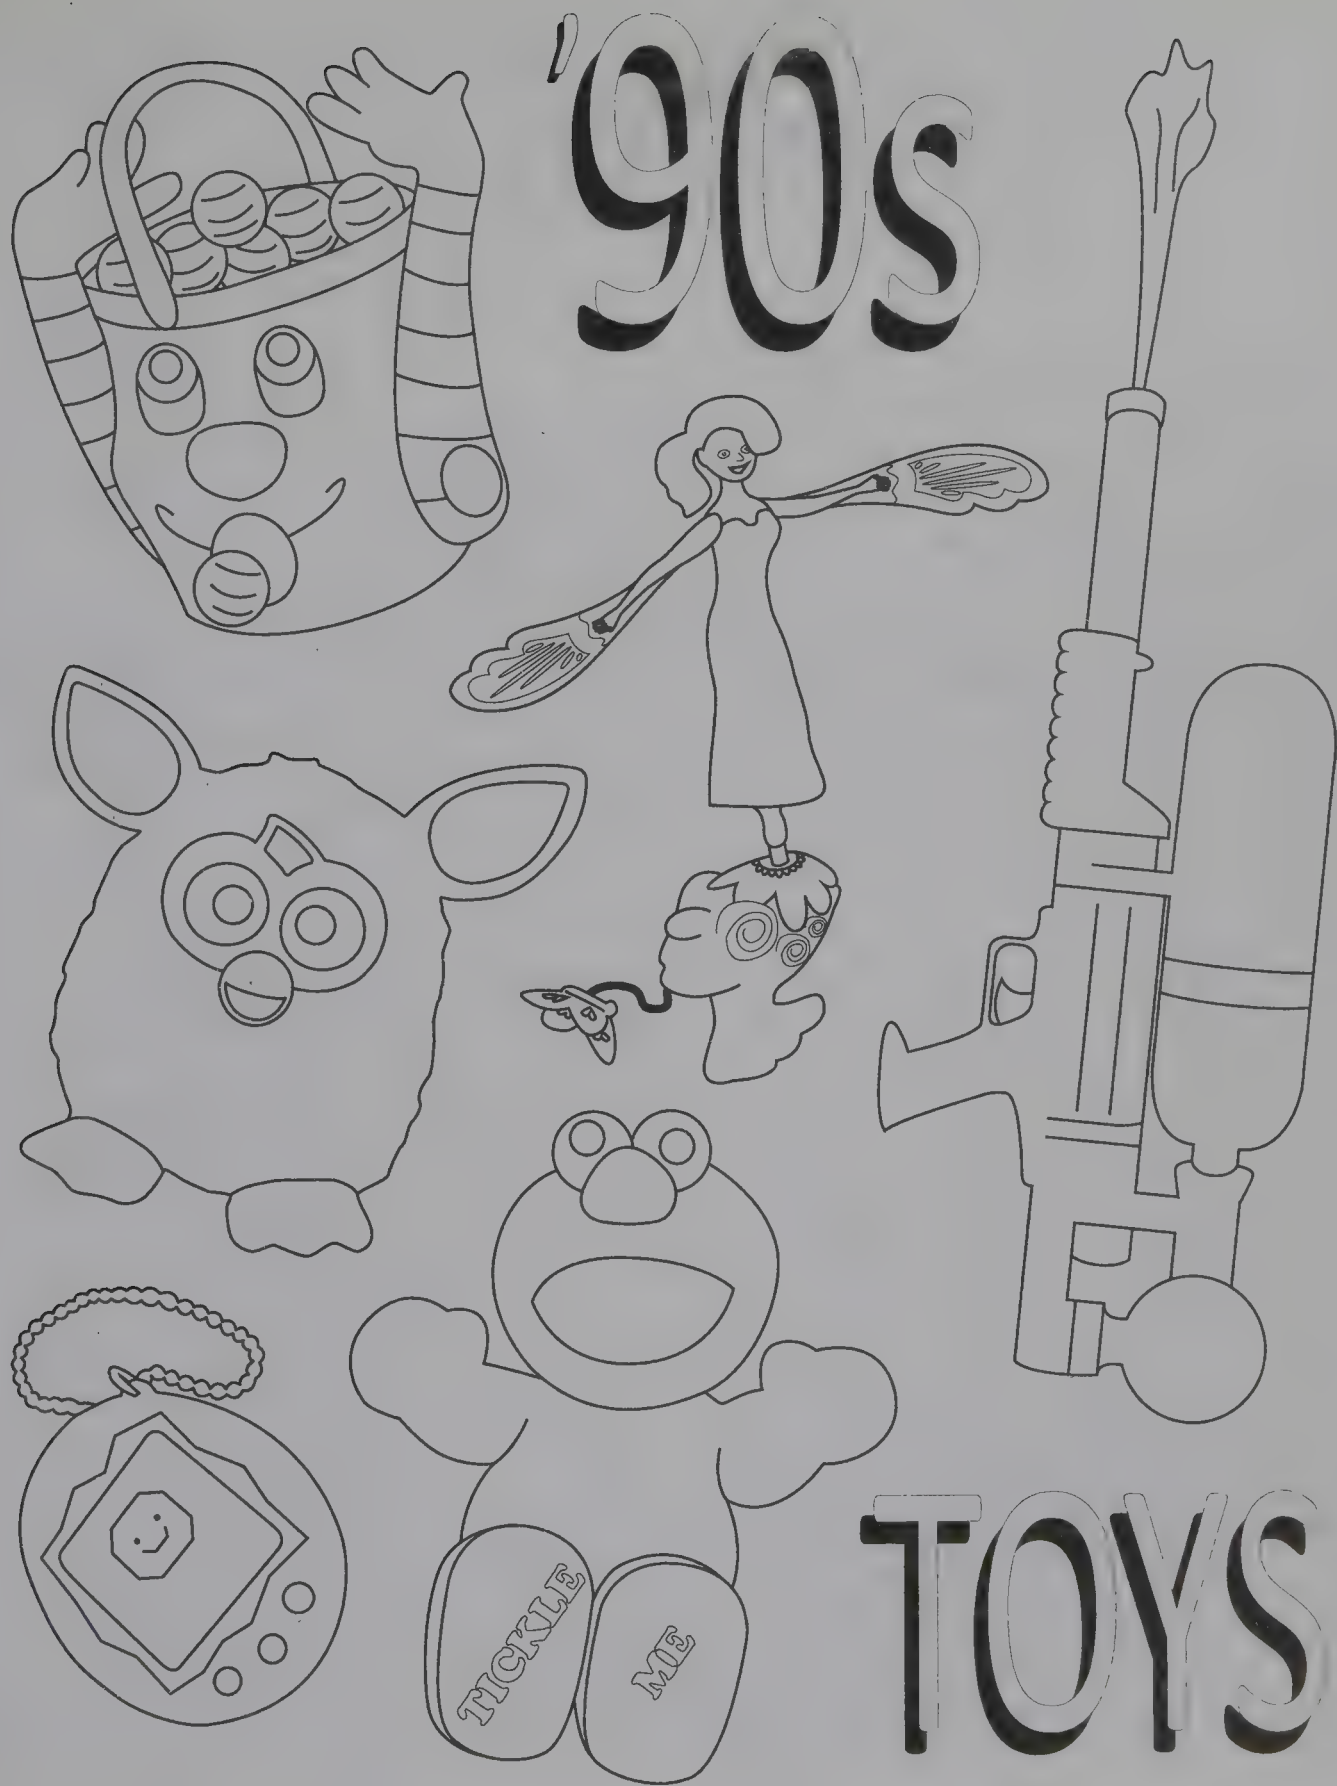

TRL Tug of War

On September 14, 1998, Total Request Live debuted on MTV with the music videos for Backstreet Boys' "I'll Never Break Your Heart" at #1 and *NSYNC's "Tearin' Up My Heart" at #2. Were you Team *NSYNC or Team BSB?

Will Smith, a then 21-year-old rapper, had never acted before accepting the starring role in NBC's The Fresh Prince of Bel-Air. Finish the song: "In West Philadelphia, born and raised, on the playground is where I spent most of my days..."

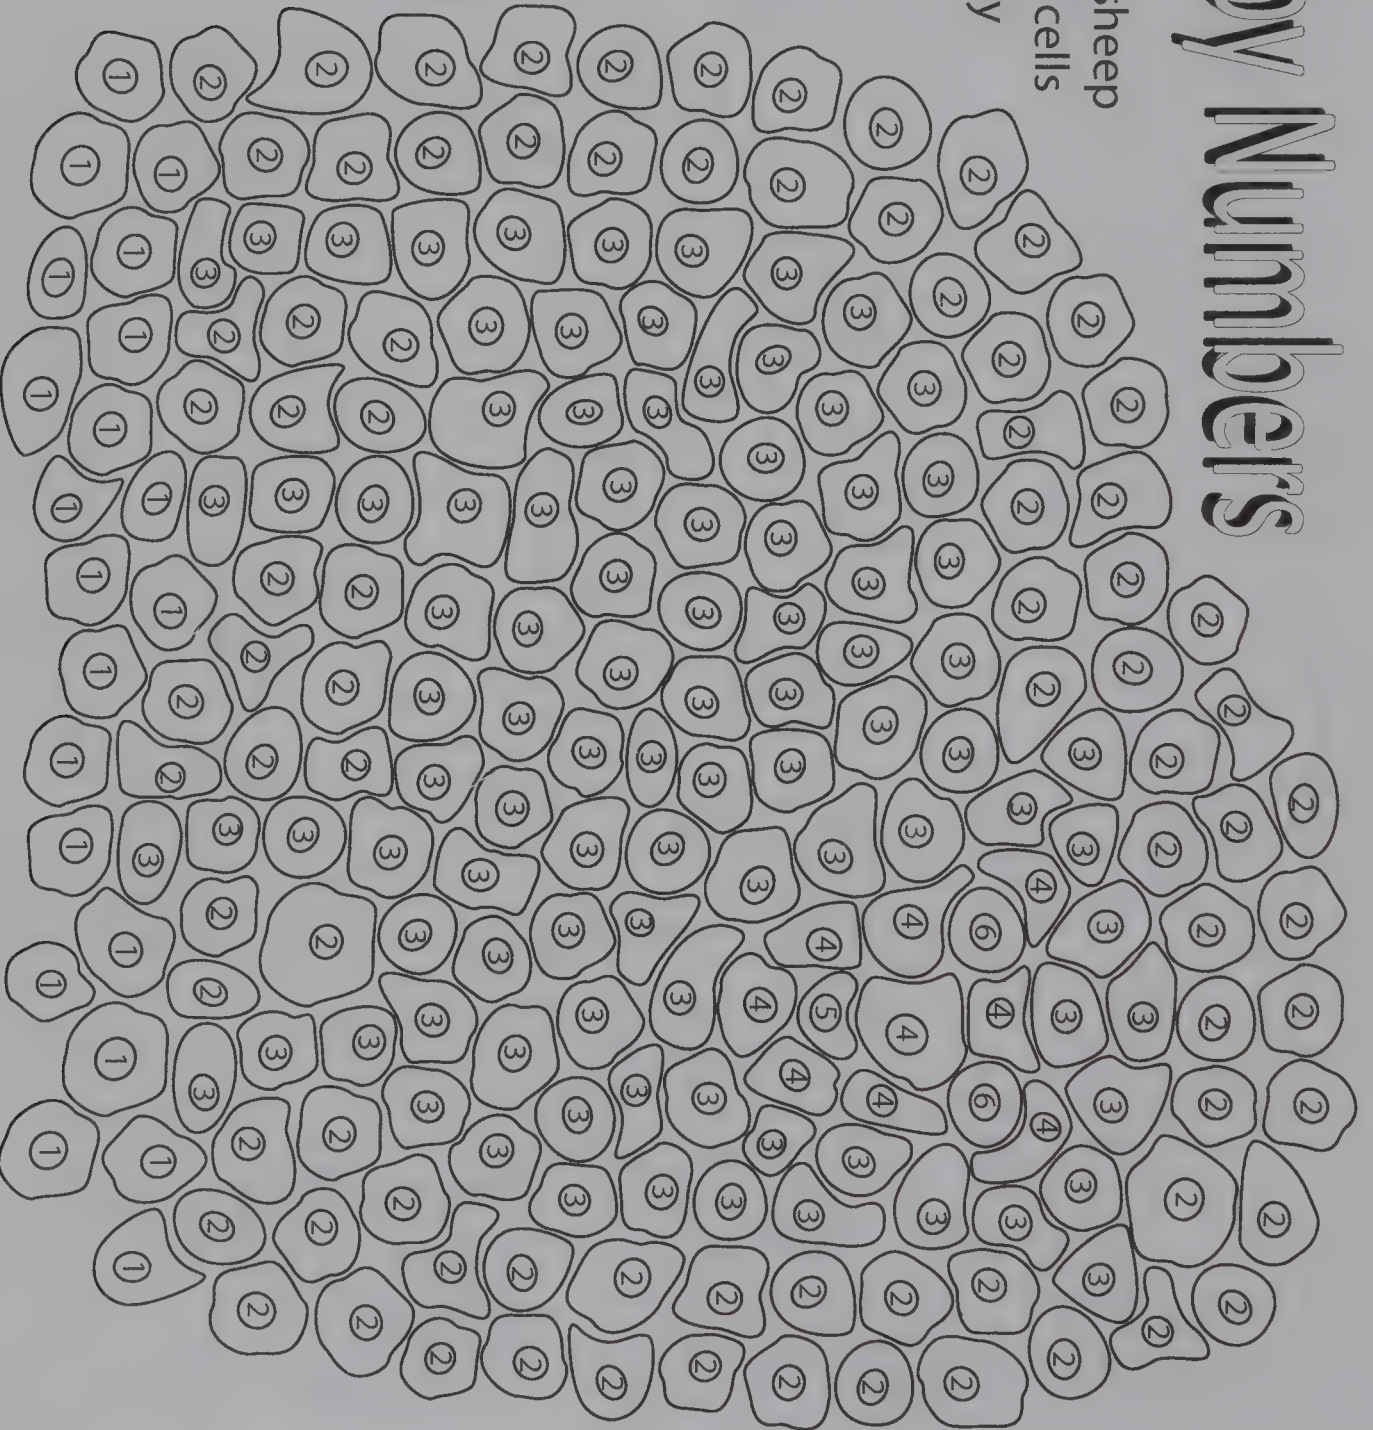

Toys like Tickle Me Elmo (1996) and Furby (1998) were hot-ticket items during the holiday seasons. How many of these rad toys did you own?

Clone by Numbers

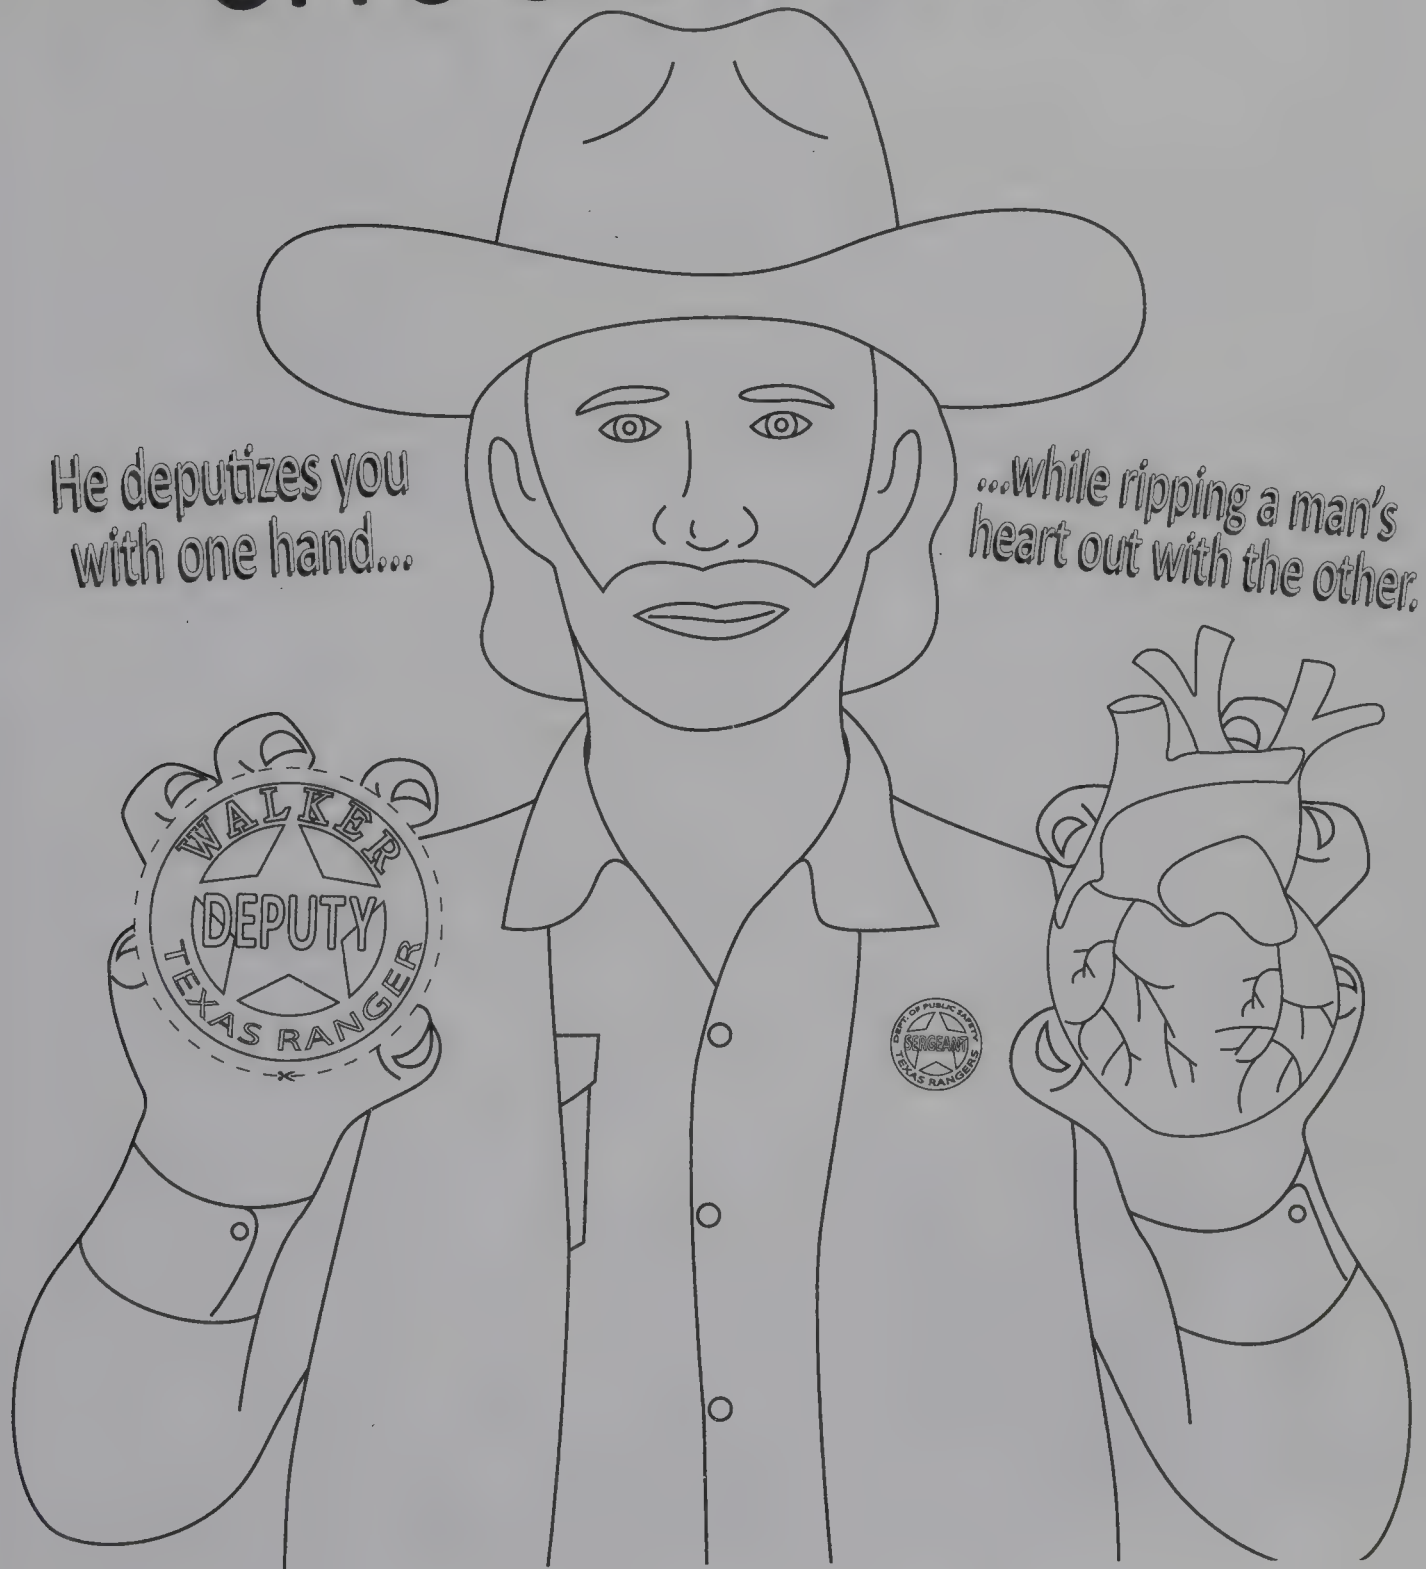

Bring Dolly the sheep to life! Fill in the cells with scientifically sound colors ...

- 1 - Green
 - 2 - Blue
 - 3 - Gray
 - 4 - Pink
 - 5 - Black
 - 6 - Brown
- ...or choose your own colors to create a mutated freak of nature!

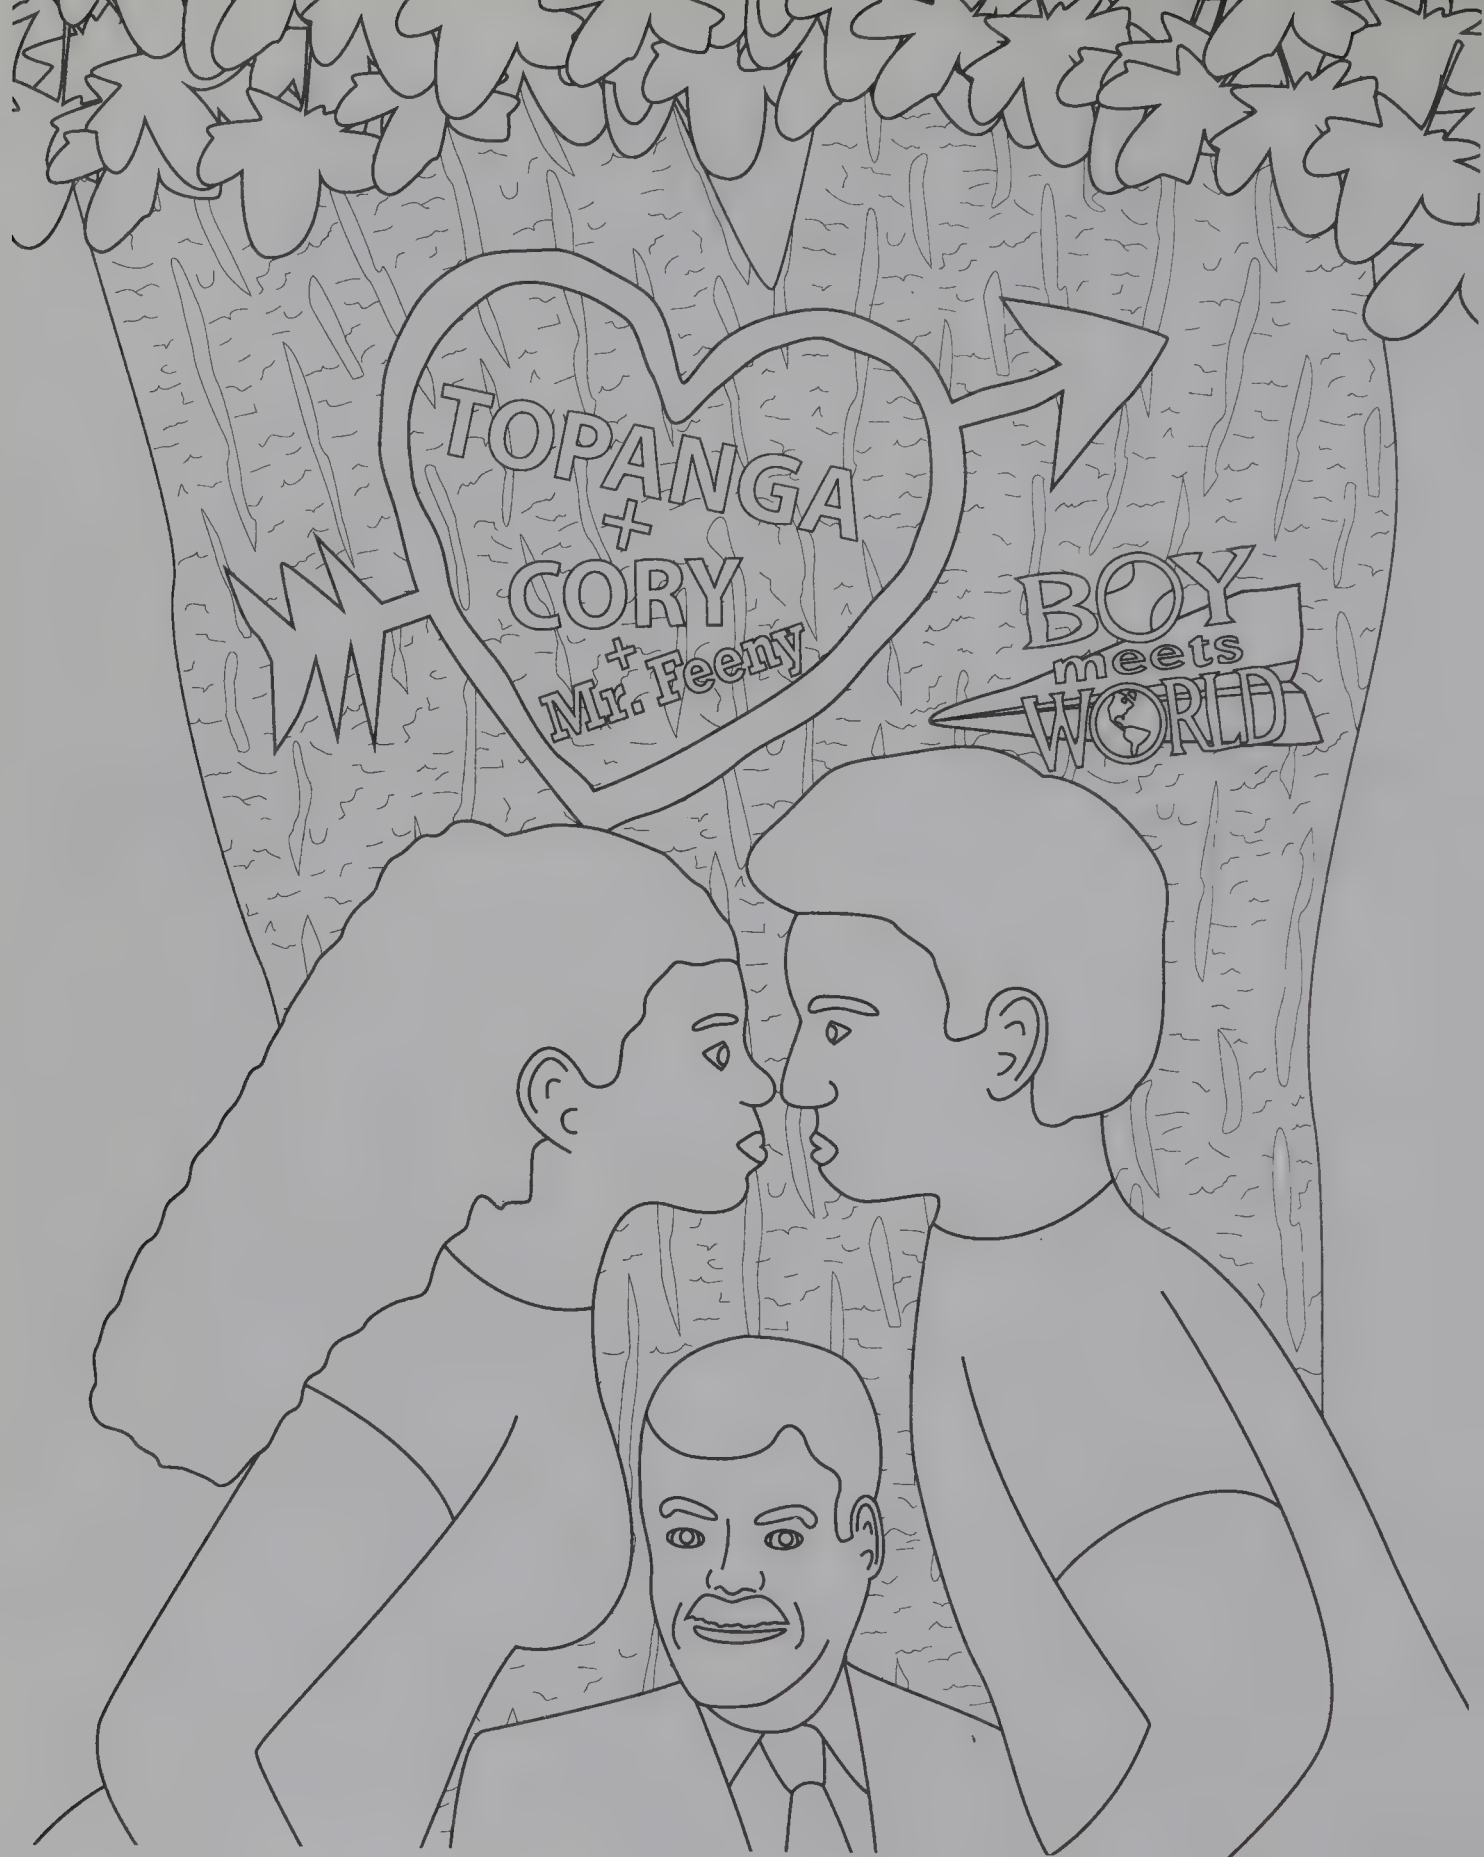

Fun fact! Dolly the sheep was named in honor of Dolly Parton because a mammary gland cell was used in the cloning process.

CHUCK NORRIS

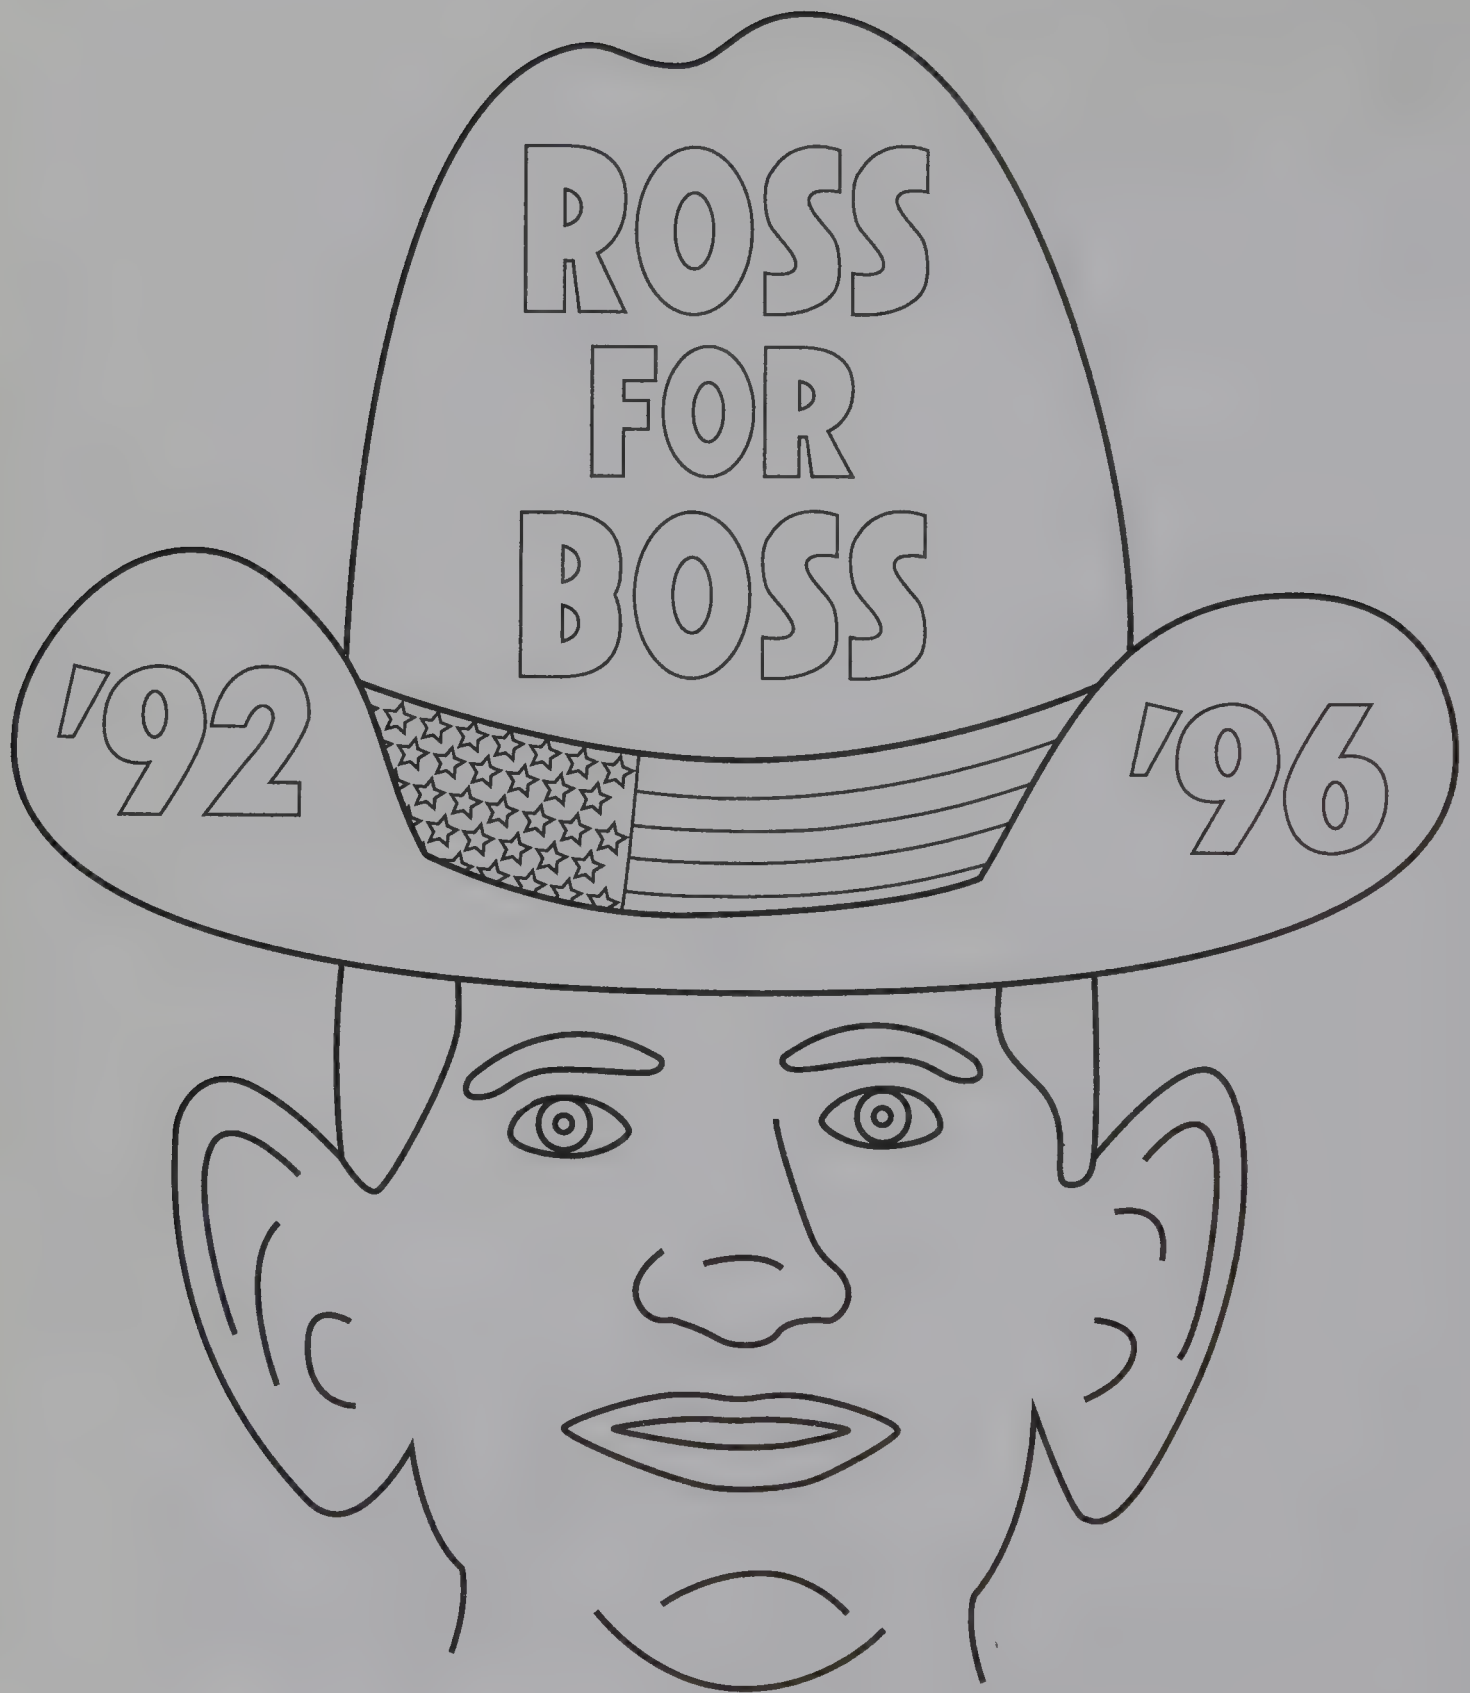

Chuck Norris (now in his 70s!) was the star of Walker, Texas Ranger for eight seasons. Since then, Norris has inspired many jokes of badassery and strength. Chuck's favorite? "Chuck's face was going to be added to Mount Rushmore, but the granite isn't hard enough for his beard."

Part of ABC's TGIF lineup during the 1990s, Boy Meets World began with main characters Cory and Topanga as sixth grade sweethearts and ended with the couple getting married as college students.

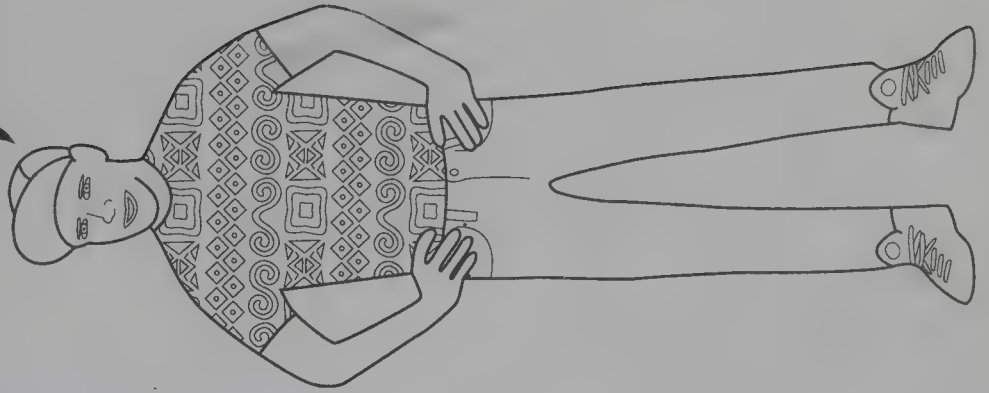

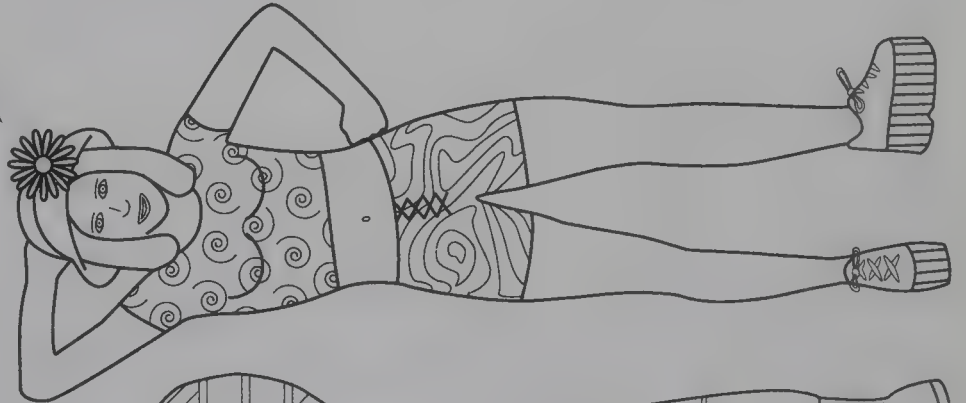

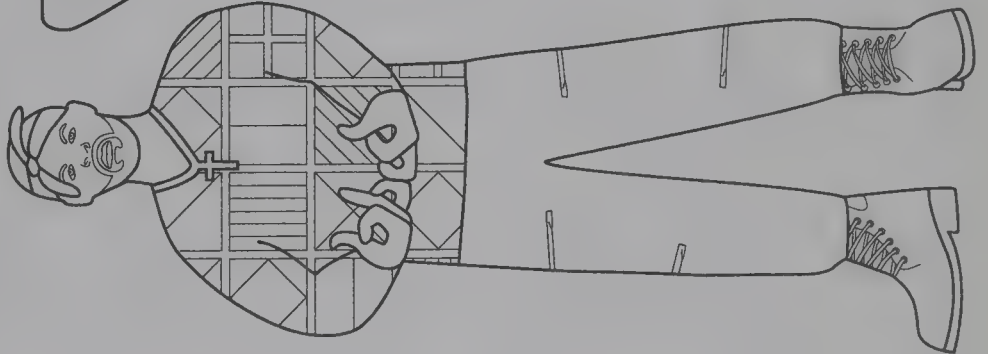

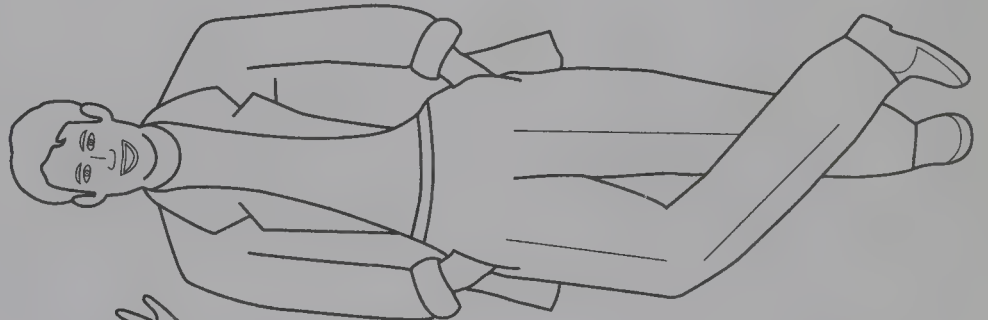

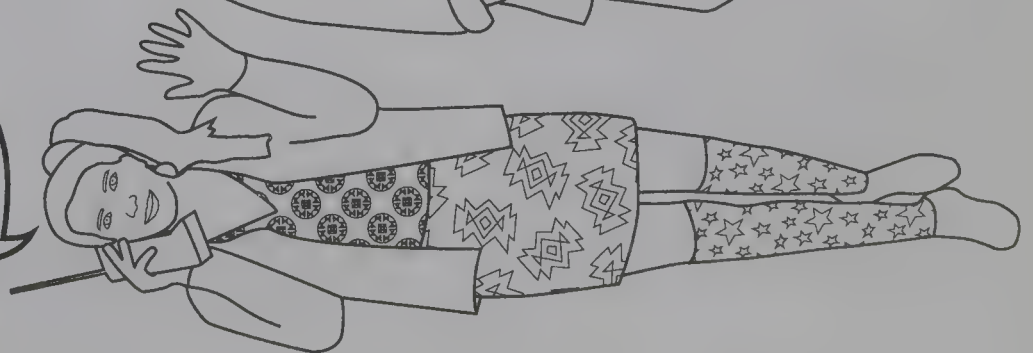

Connect the dots to reveal the name of this hit song from popular band Weezer!

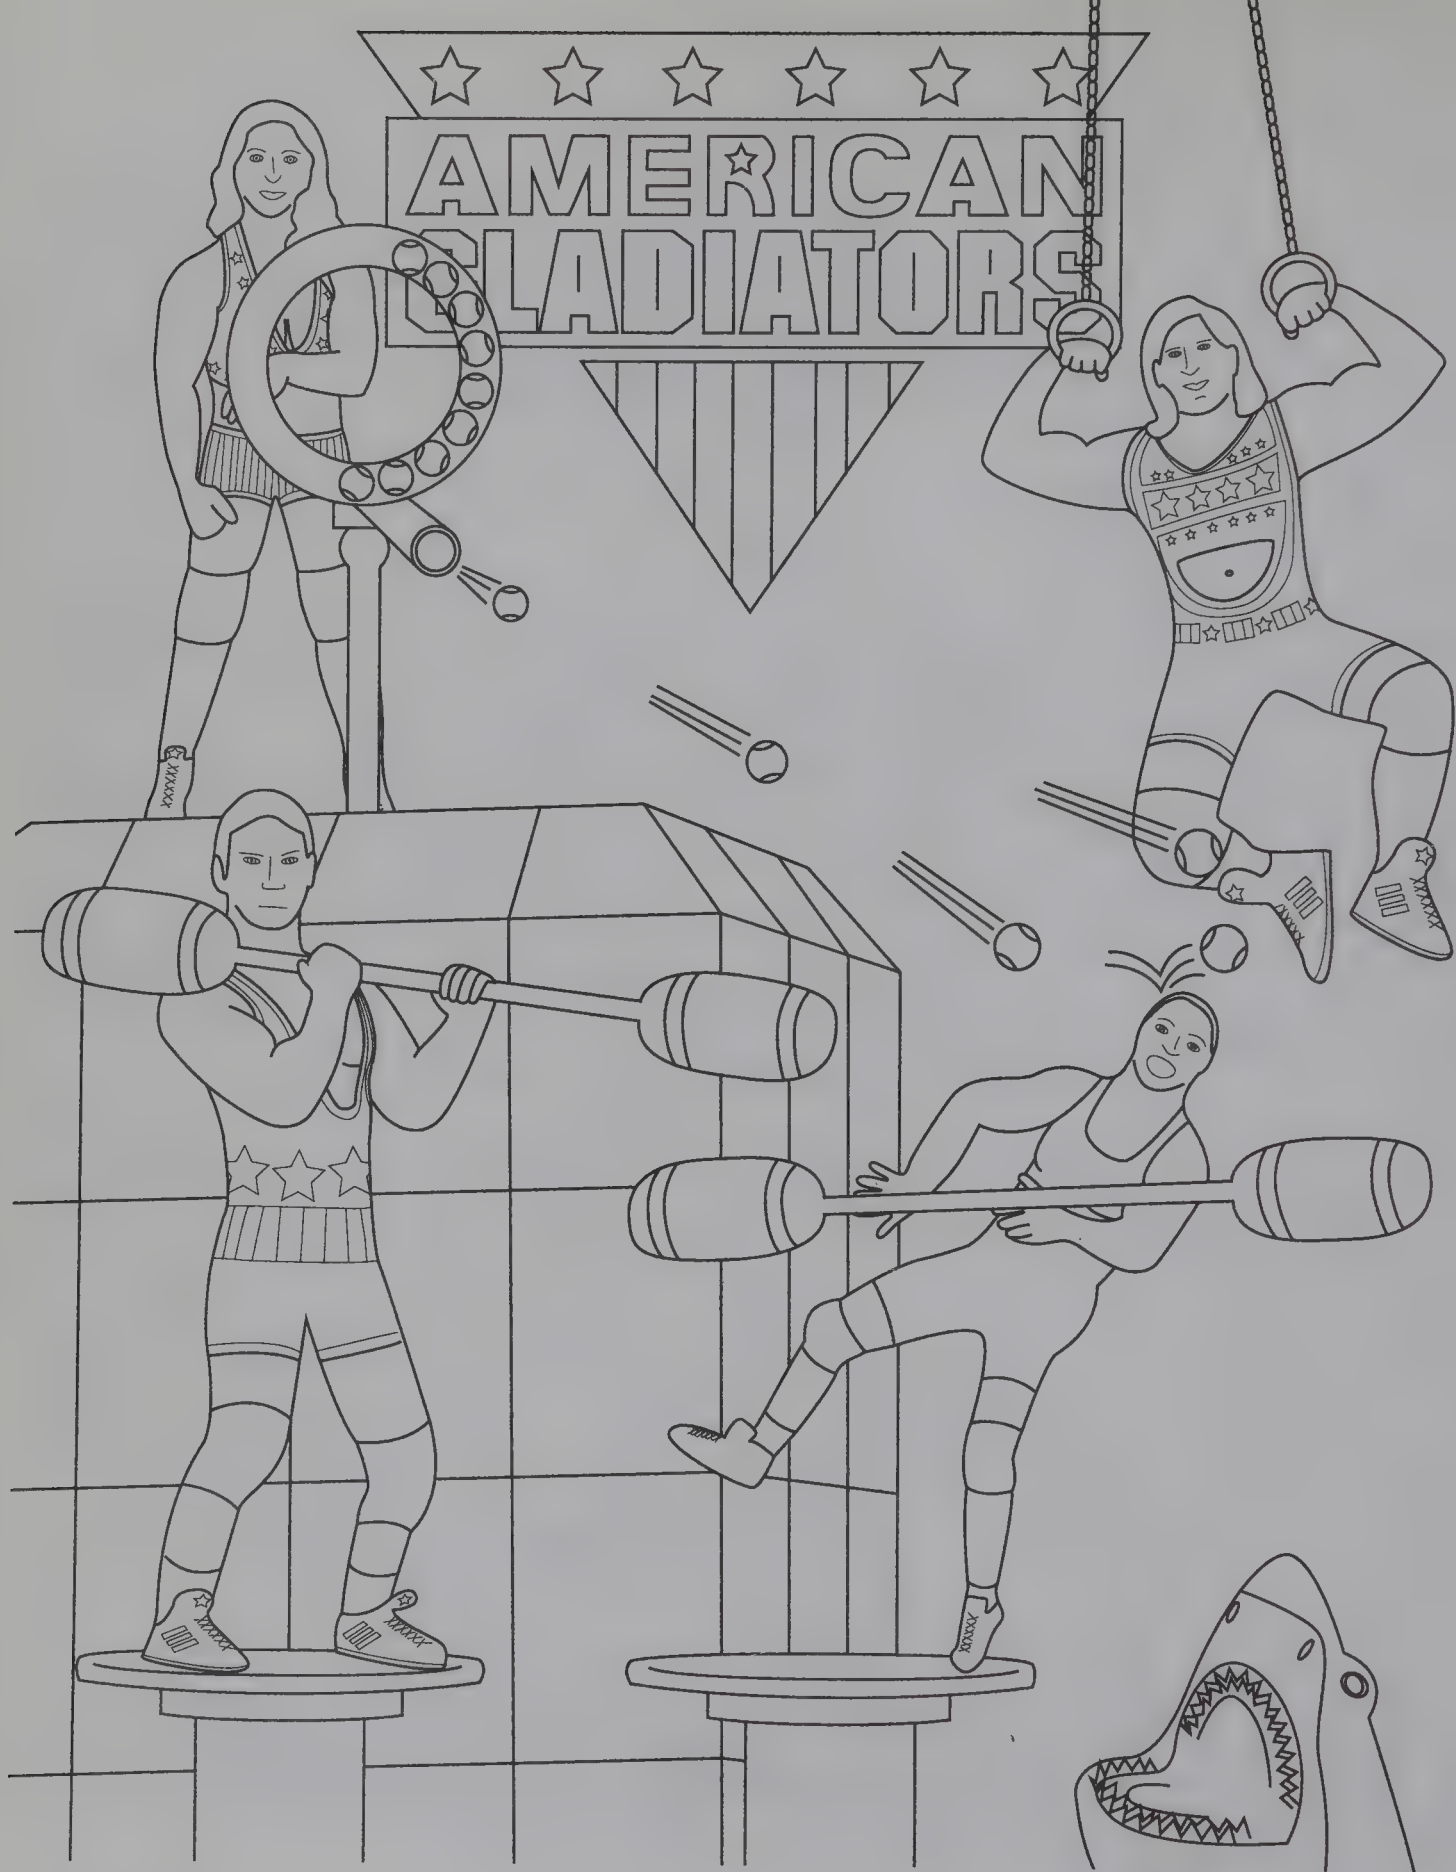

During his first presidential election in 1992, billionaire businessman Ross Perot asked, "Which one of the three candidates as young men would you want your daughter to marry? Ears and all." The voters' response? Talk to the hand. Perot lost in 1992 and again in 1996.

Like, talk to the hand.
Then fill our speech bubbles
with 90s sayings.

Fill in your favorite phrases of the 1990s! Do you still say any of them today?

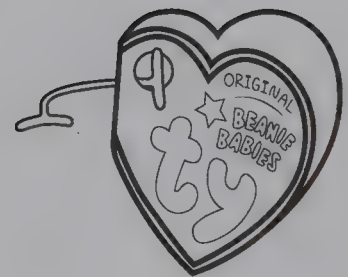

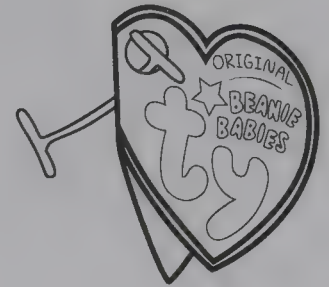

The '90s were all about awesome game shows. From American Gladiators and Singled Out to Supermarket Sweep and Win Ben Stein's Money, these were the OG reality TV shows.

These '90s kids shows were all that and a bag of chips! Do you remember Barney & Friends, Bananas in Pajamas, Teletubbies, Lamb Chop's Play-Along, or Bear in the Big Blue House?

Design Your Own Beanie Babies

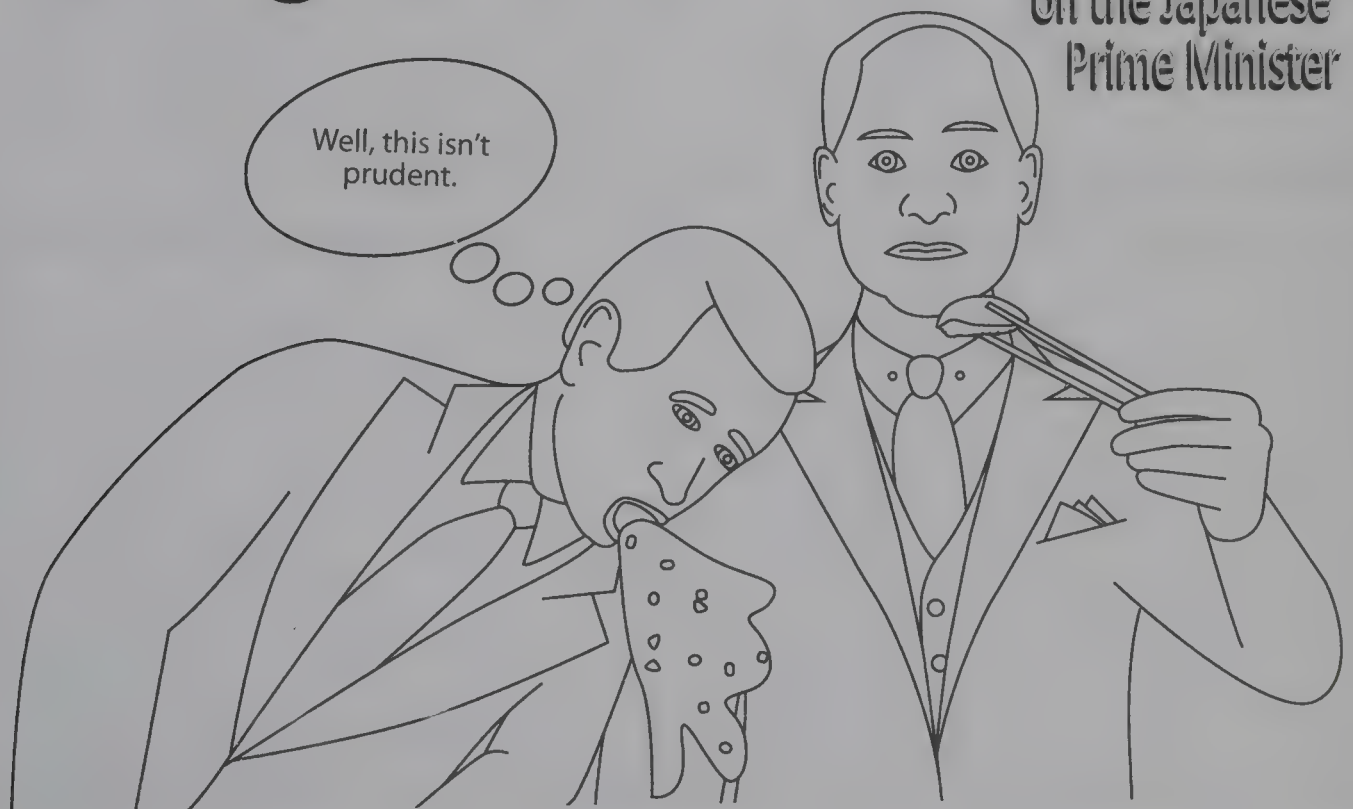

These one-of-a-kind collectibles are sure to pay for your child's college education!

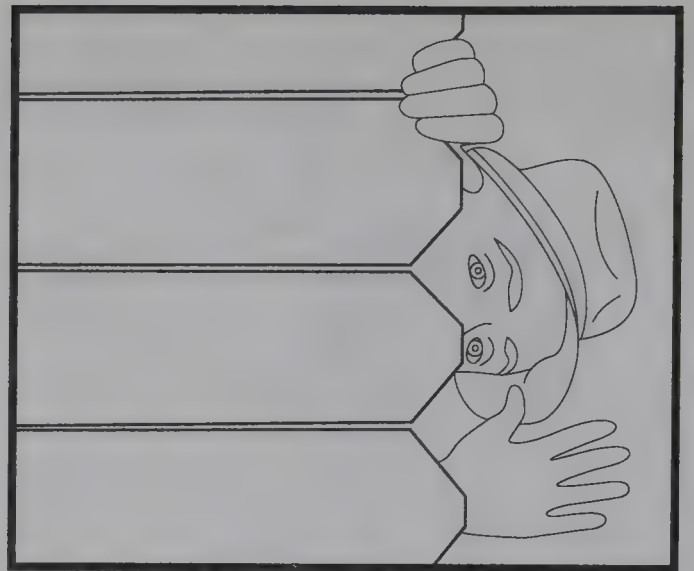

The original nine Beanie Babies—Legs the Frog, Squealer the Pig, Brownie the Bear, Flash the Dolphin, Splash the Whale, Patti the Platypus, Chocolate the Moose, Spot the Dog, and Pinchers the Lobster—were initially sold only in the Chicago area, beginning in 1993. By 1995, Beanie Babies would be sold nationwide; in 1999, Ty retired the Beanie Baby line.

on the Japanese
Prime Minister

Do the Bushusuru! It's not a new dance craze. It literally means "to do the Bush thing," which was coined after President George H. W. Bush vomited on the lap of Japanese Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa at a state dinner in 1992. Brutal!

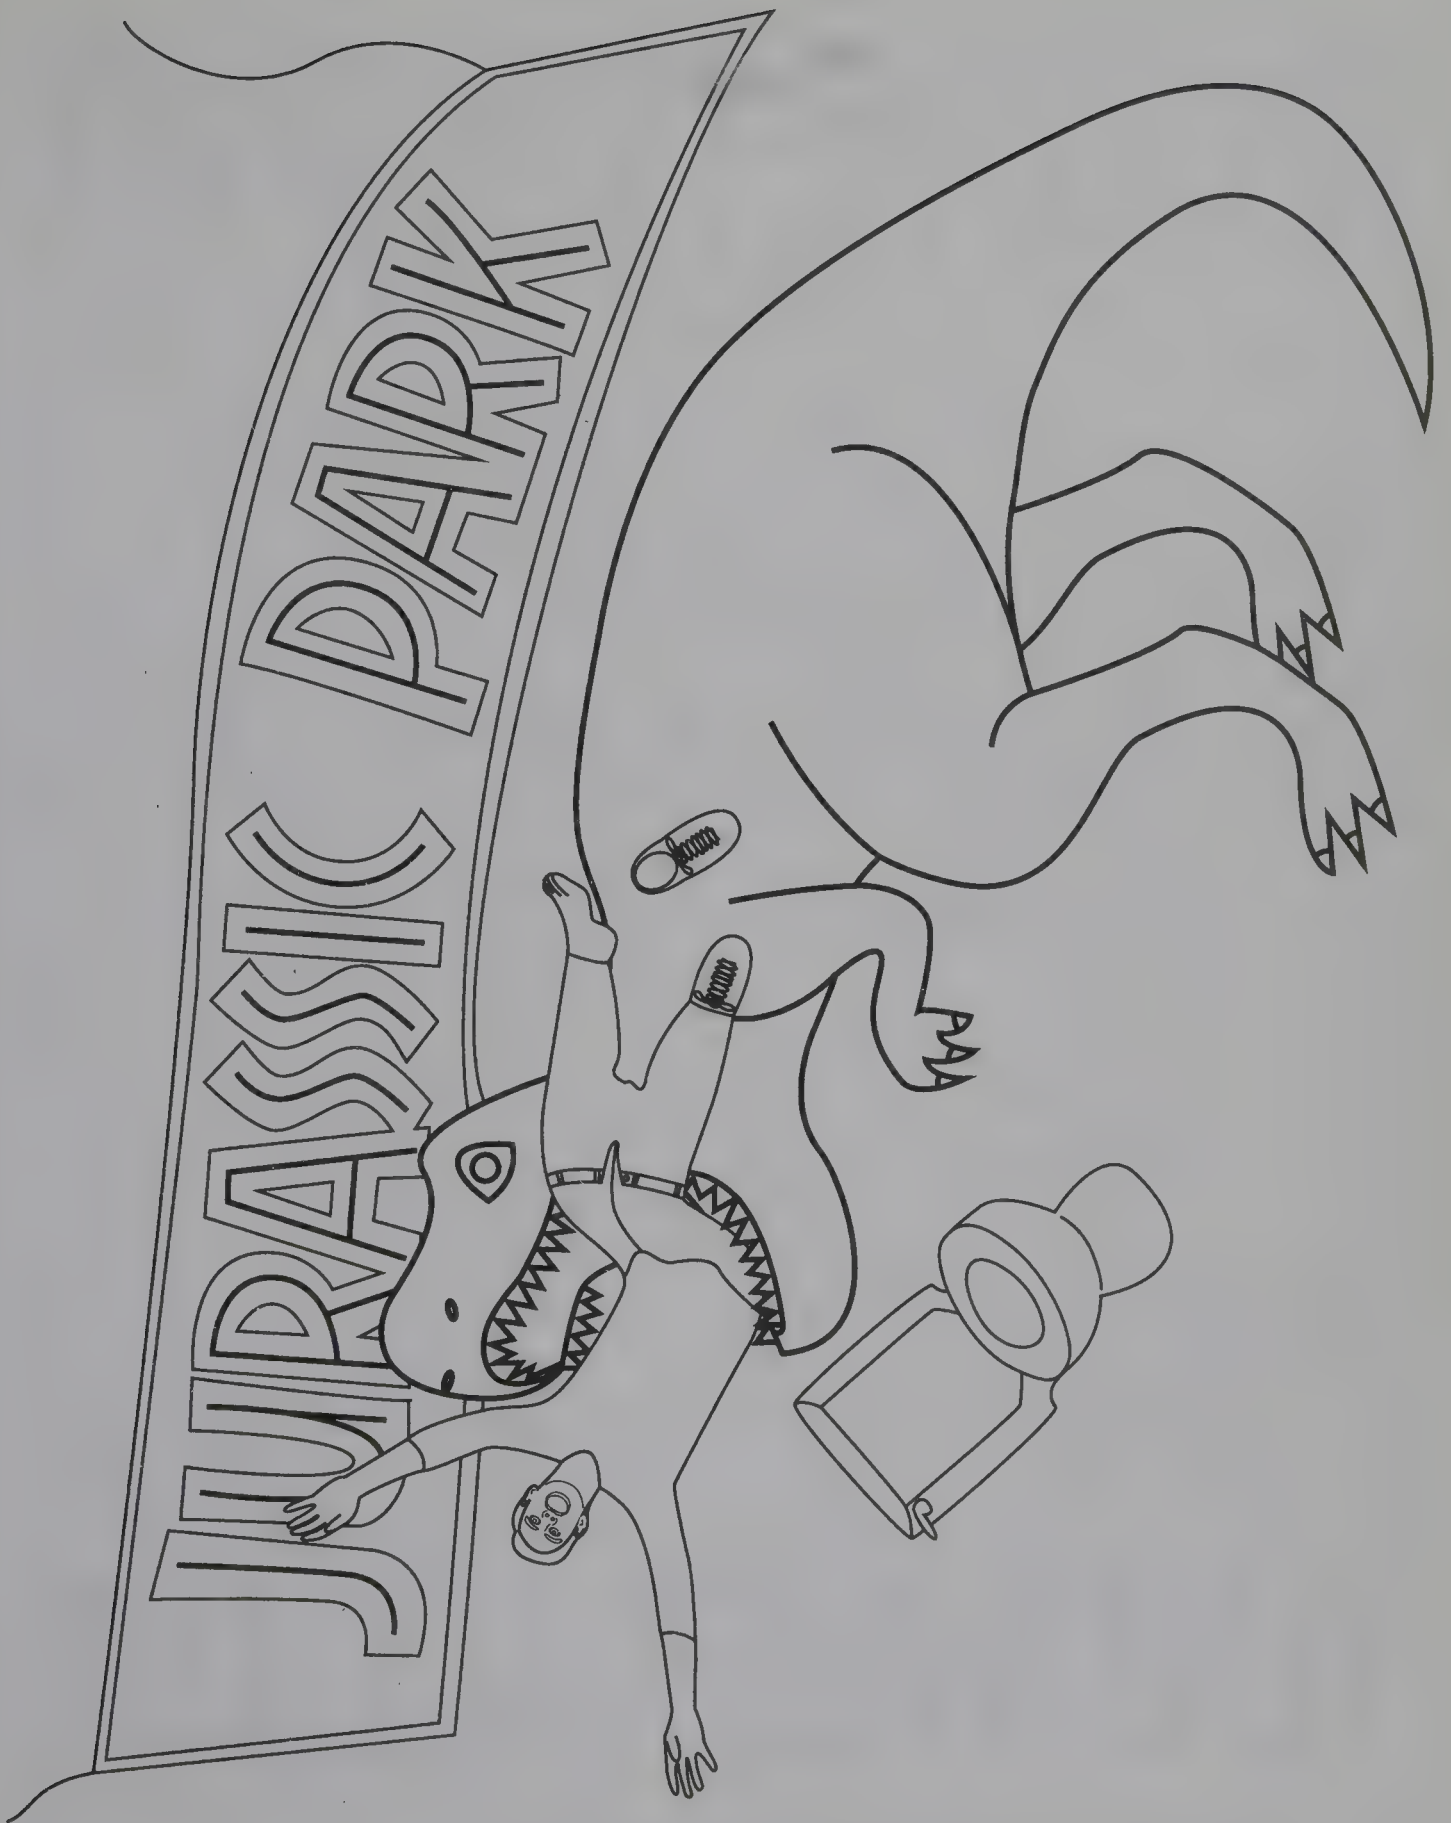

HELP WILSON HIDE HIS FACE

Hi-ho, good neighbor! Wilson W. Wilson Jr., Home Improvement's sage confidant, hid his face behind the Taylor family's fence for eight seasons. What more creative methods could Wilson have used to veil his visage?

Wilson's face was a major secret of the '90s. The actor portraying Wilson only revealed his full face during the show's behind-the-scenes special, which aired in 1999.

In the 126-minute movie, only 15 minutes are of actual dinosaur footage: 9 minutes of animatronics, 6 minutes of computer graphics.

IF THE GLOVE DON'T FIT

YOU MUST ACQUIT

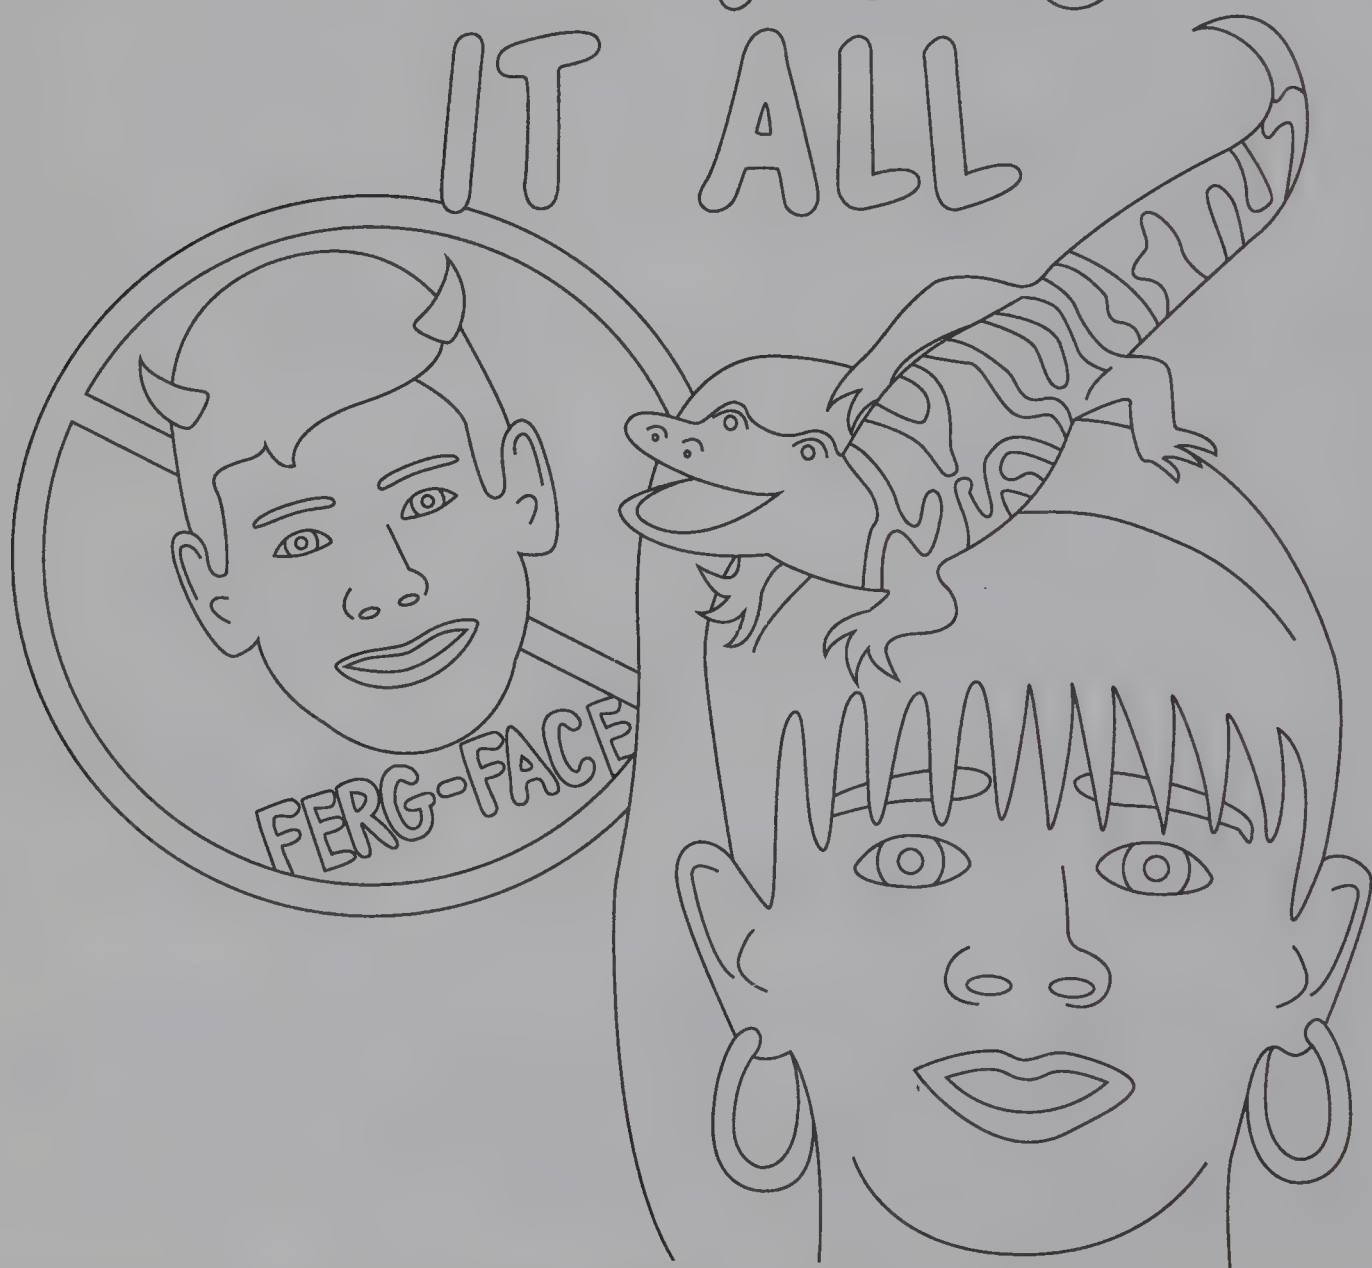

On June 15, 1995, in one of the most memorable moments of his criminal trial, O.J. Simpson attempted to don a pair of seemingly incriminating leather gloves that just wouldn't fit, no matter how hard he "tried."

Things Tom Green's Bum Has Been On:

The music video for Tom Green's "Lonely Swedish (The Bum Bum Song)" reached #1 on TRL within five days of its first appearance on the show. Green retired the music video, and later revealed that MTV pushed him to do so. Super shady!

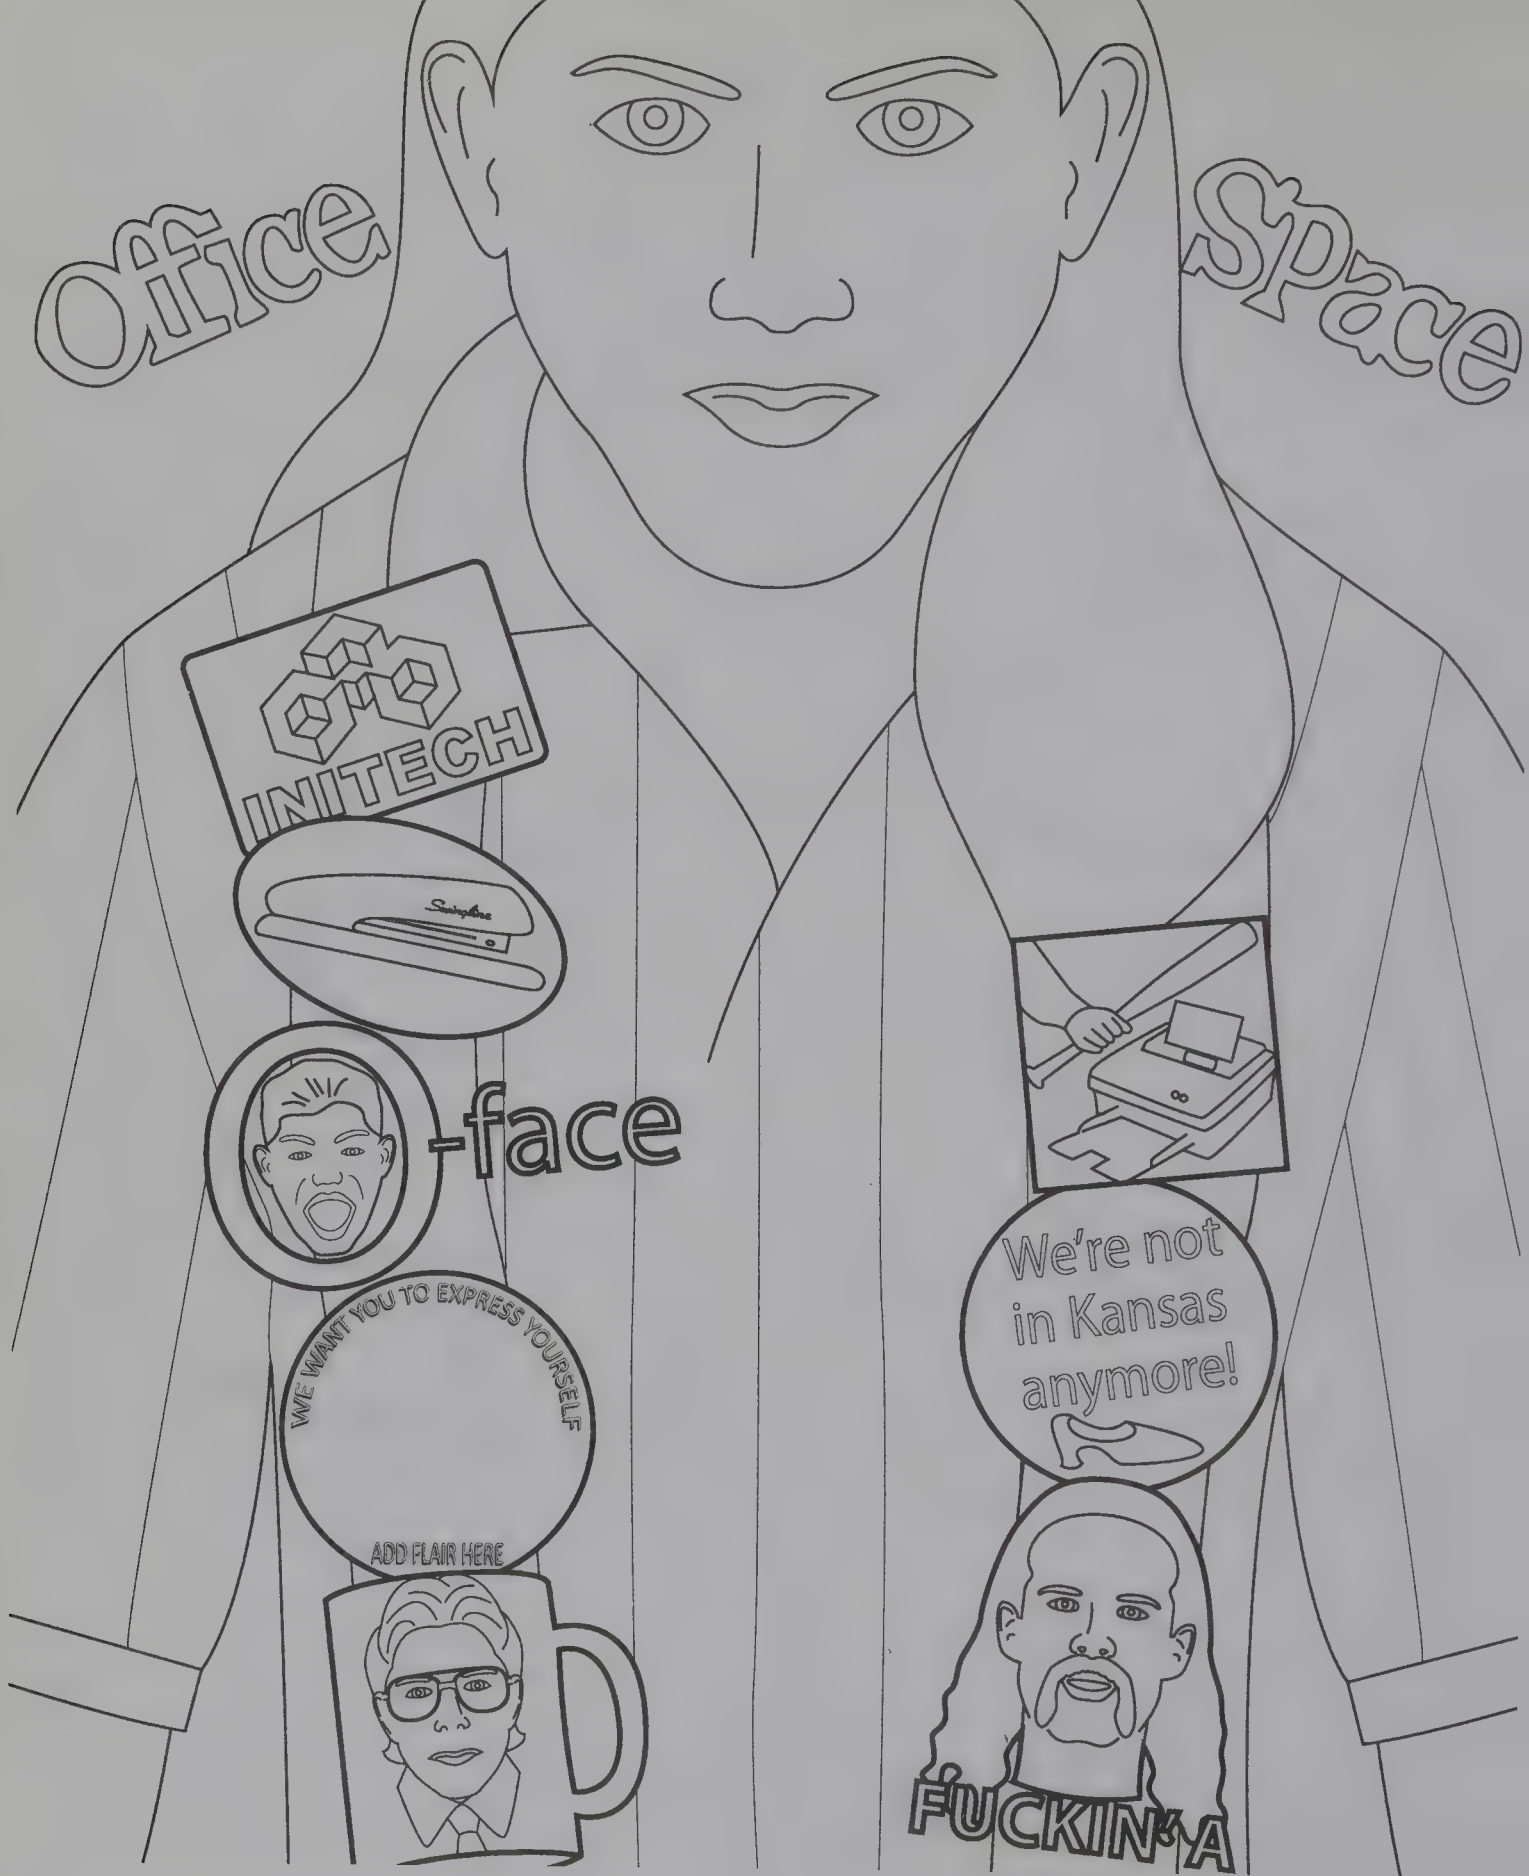

AZZIRAJJ EXPLAINS IT ALL

News flash! Clarissa Explains It All star Melissa Joan Hart was James Van Der Beek's first on-screen kiss—he guest-starred as bad-boy rocker Paulie Slicksinger!

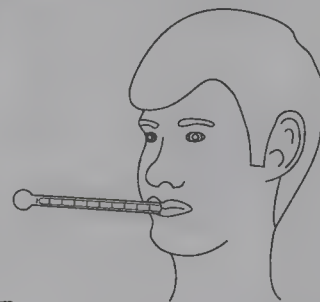

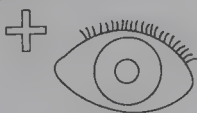

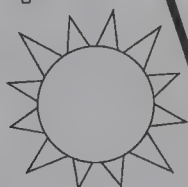

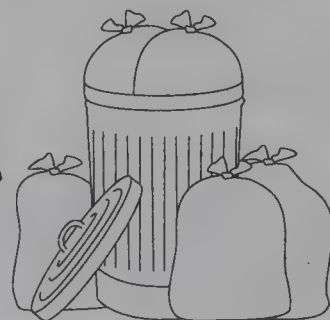

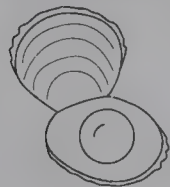

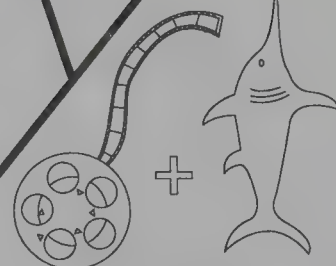

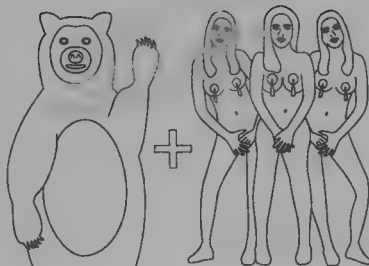

Many schools banned pogs in the '90s. School officials considered pogs to be a form of gambling and said the games distracted students from classes and caused playground arguments. Take a chill pill, dudes!

Office Space's dope red Swingline stapler was not available for purchase until April 2002 after the company received repeated requests by fans of the flick.

Eagle-Eye Cherry, Hanson, Pearl Jam,
Reel Big Fish, Garbage, 98 Degrees,
Right Said Fred, Barenaked Ladies.

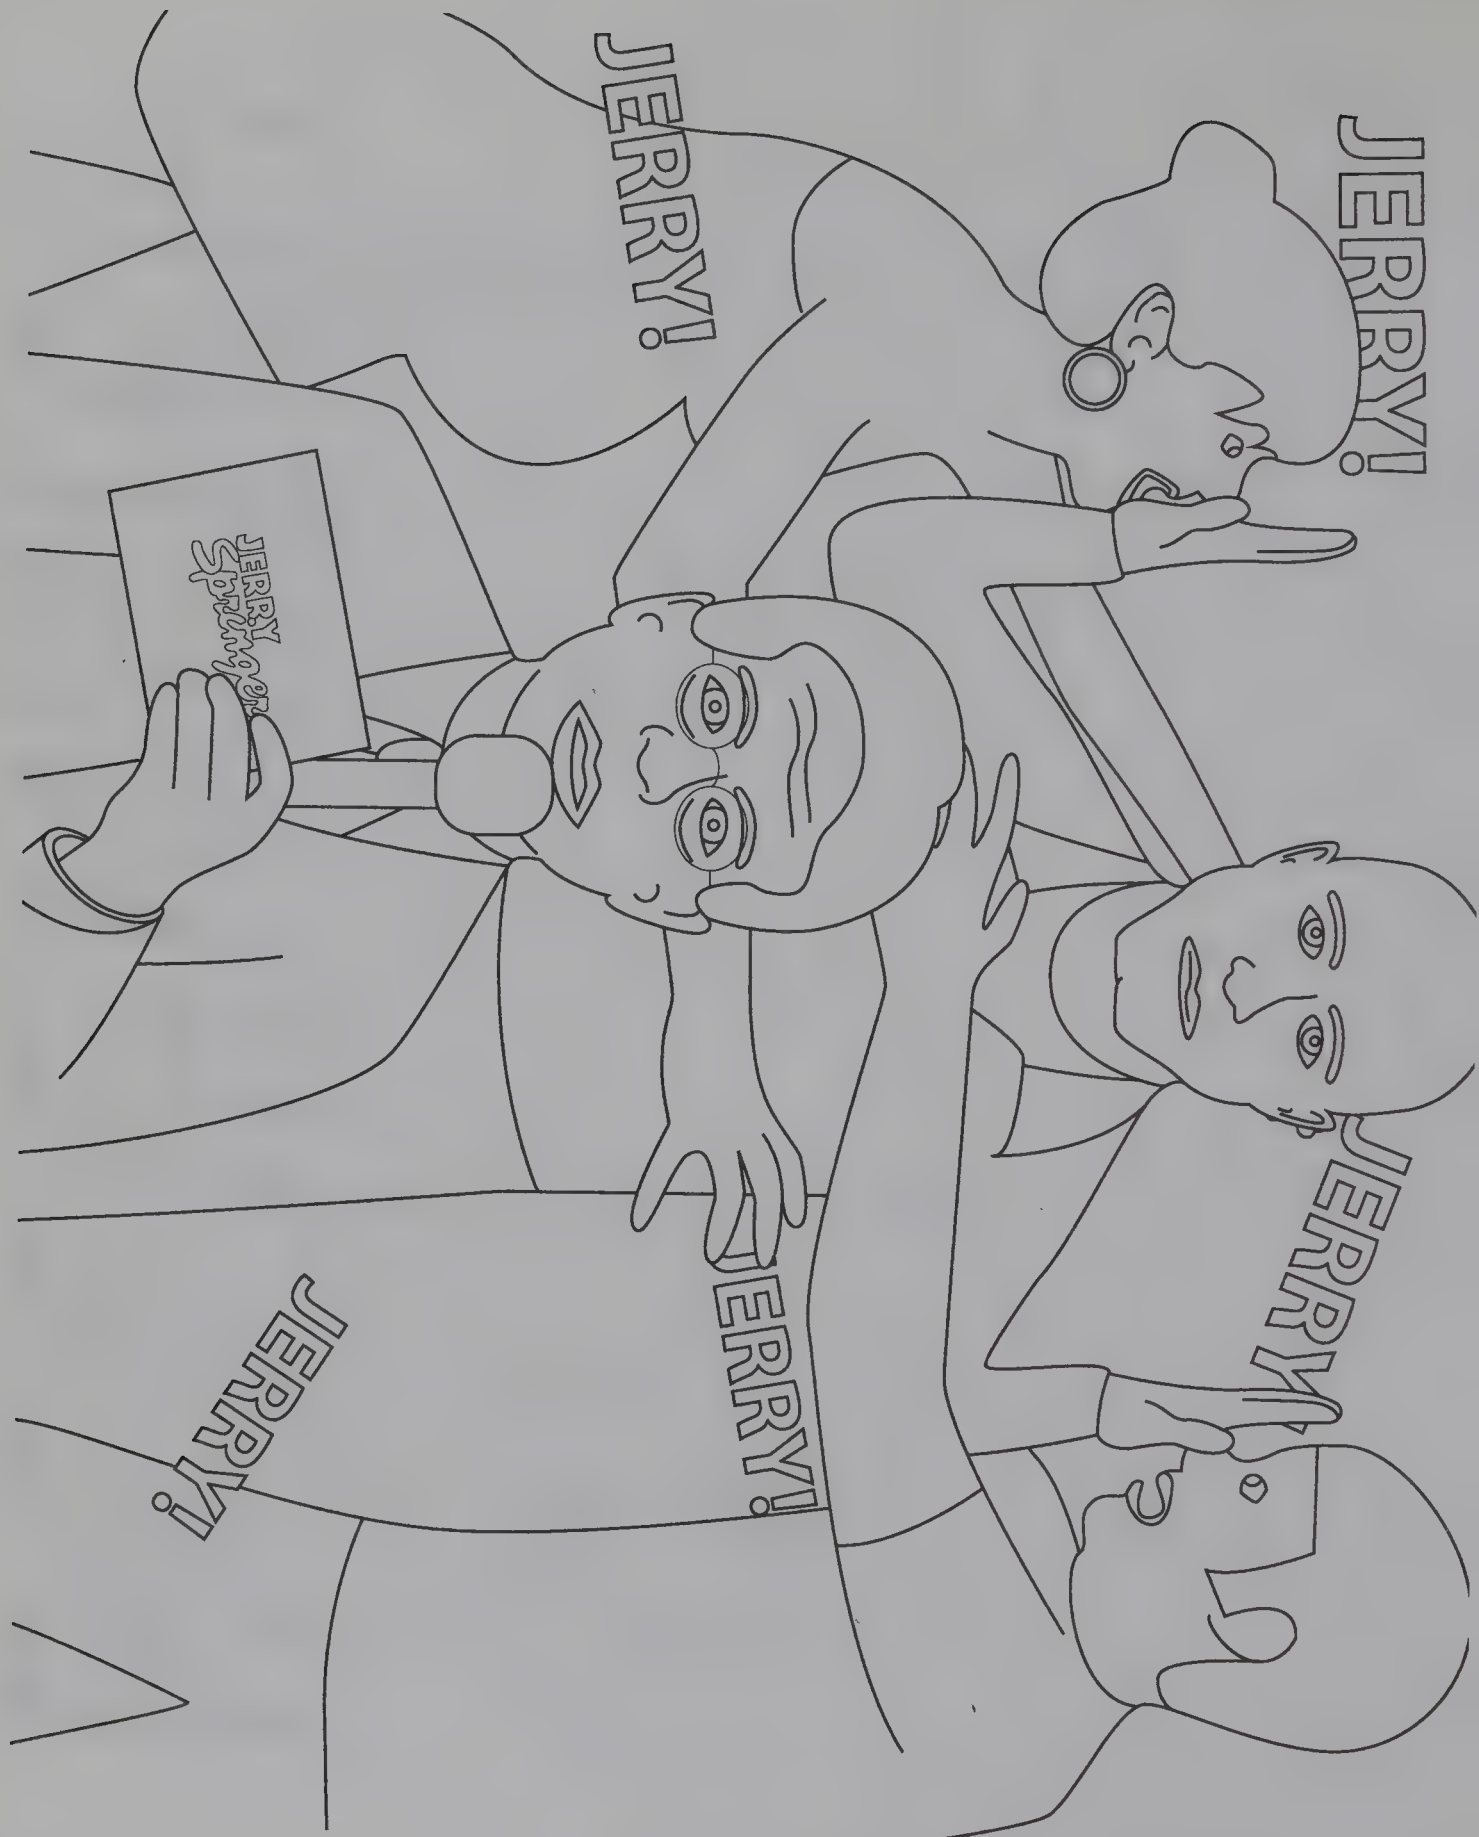

Use the picture clues to reveal popular bands from the '90s. If you answer more than six correctly, you totally could have been an MTV VJ!

Based on the popular computer game, Where in the World Is Carmen Sandiego? became a highly rated PBS kid's television program in 1991. If you hear the title and immediately sing the show's theme song in your head, you're not alone, my friend. As for Where's Waldo? It was always the best way to kill time on a family road trip.

NBC canceled Baywatch after its first season. Star David Hasselhoff pushed the network to give it a second chance, and it became one of the most popular shows in the world, airing in 148 countries on every continent except Antarctica. Don't Hassel the Hoff.

The Jerry Springer Show reached its ratings peak in 1997 and 1998, even becoming the first talk show in years to beat the Oprah Winfrey Show. Popular Springer show topics included "I Married a Horse," "I'm Pregnant by My Brother," and "My Boyfriend Turned Out to be a Girl."

Ahhhhh...there's nothing as refreshing as that first fizzy sip! In the '90s, many soda companies tried to make clear sodas happen with Crystal Pepsi, Tab Clear, Clearly Canadian, and the alcoholic drink Zima. No go. What was your favorite thirst-quencher?

The number of teen magazines tripled during the 1990s. The most popular mags included Bop, Tiger Beat, YM, Teen, Sassy, TeenPeople, JUMP, 16, ElleGirl, and Seventeen.

NOT WANTED THE HUMORBOMBER

- Known Alias: "CARROT TOP"
- Fond of zany antics, lame jokes
- If seen, report to 1-800-CALL-ATT

Believe it or not, Scott "Carrot Top" Thompson won the American Comedy Award for Funniest Male Stand-Up Comic in 1994. Now, he has regular shows in Las Vegas and works out a lot.

Show this '90s ugly duckling

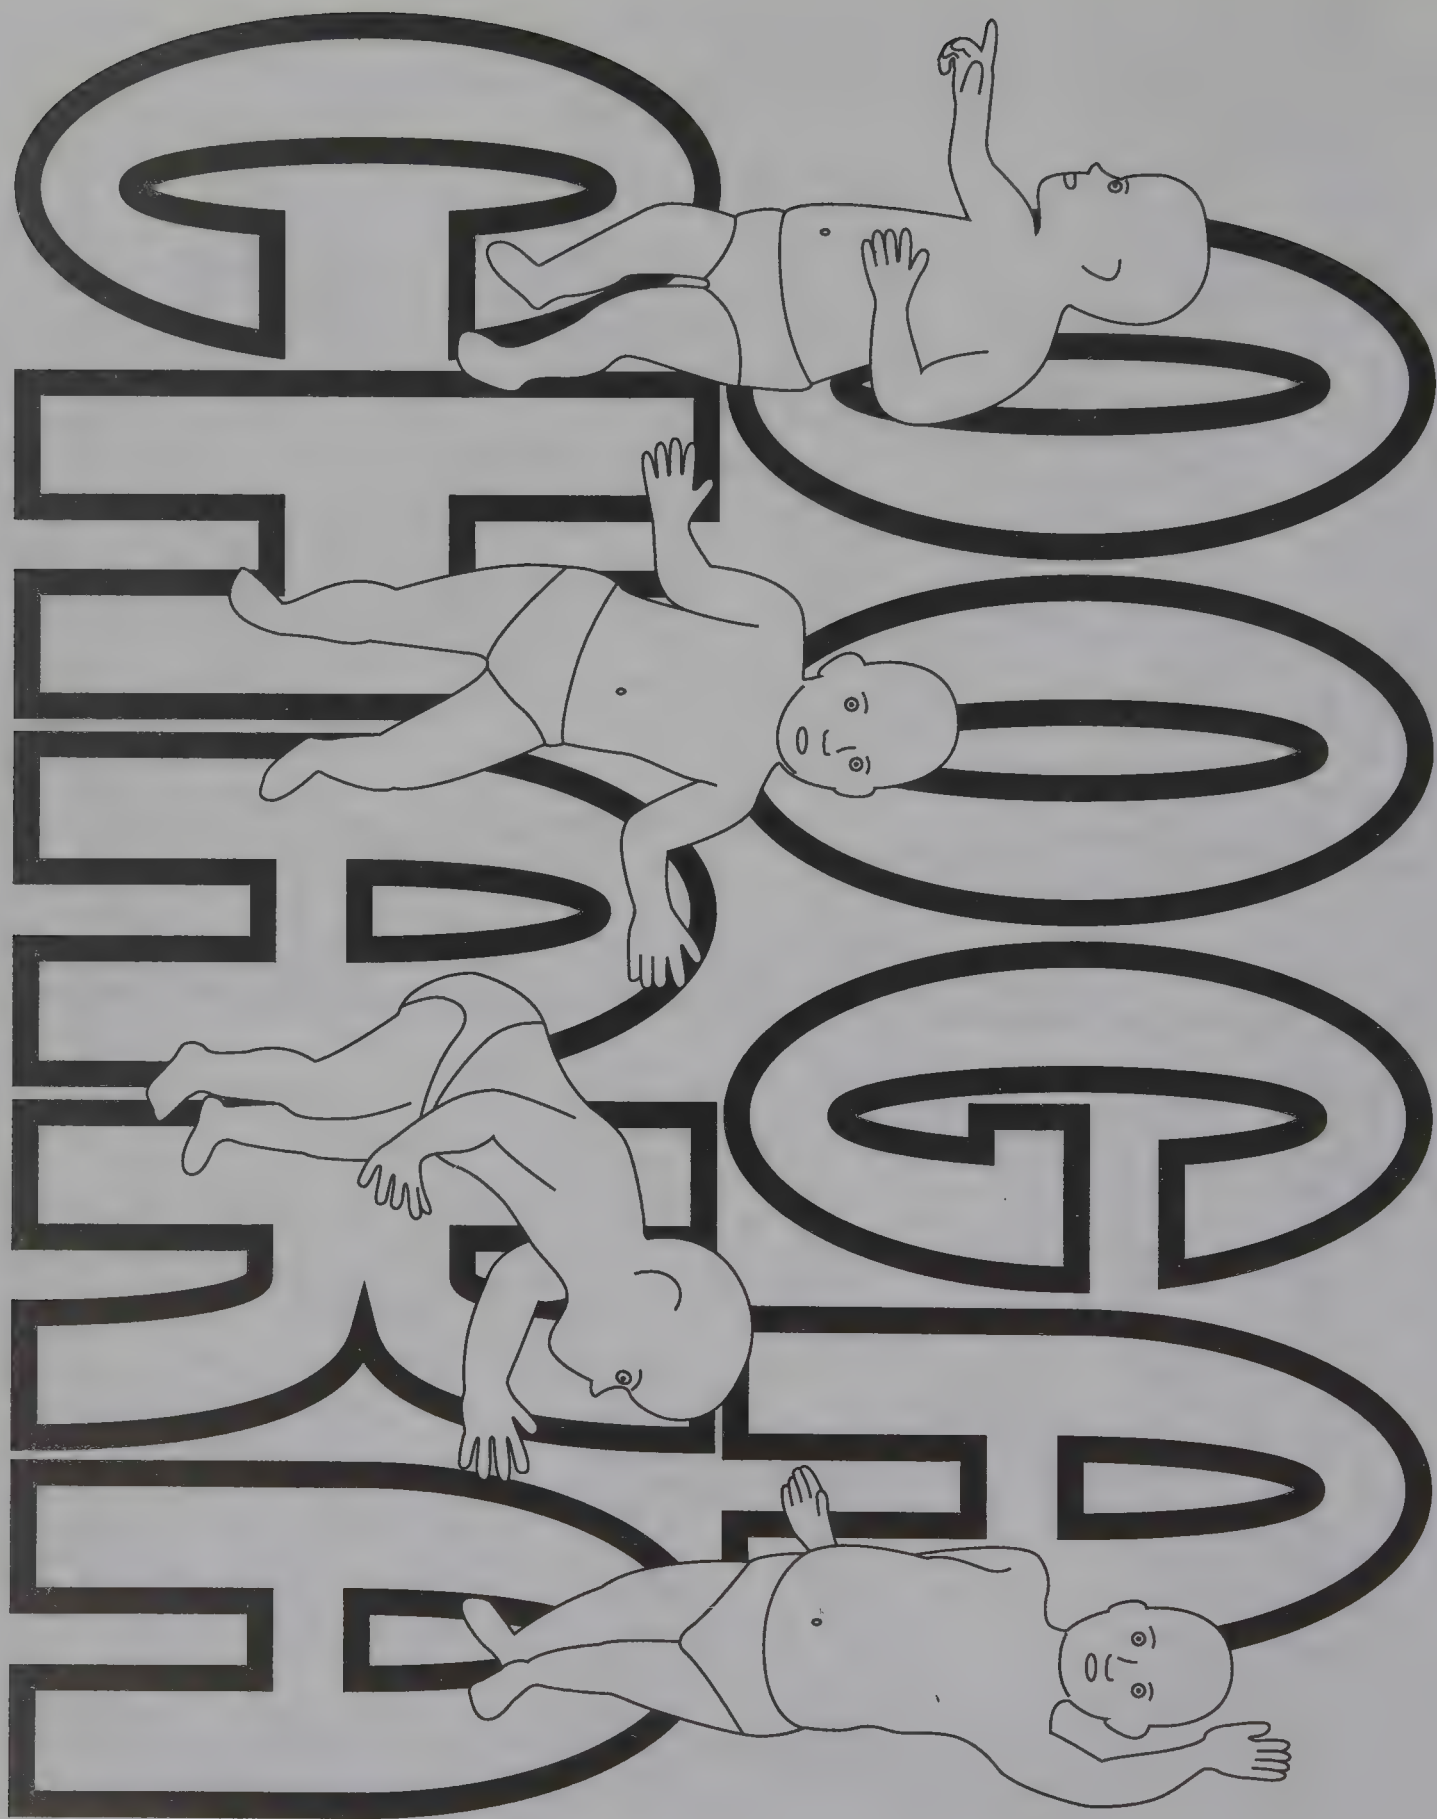

SHE'S ALL THAT

It's makeover time! Featured in popular flicks like Clueless and 1999's She's All That, makeover montages have since become a rom-com staple.

This popular Nickelodeon game show aired from 1993 to 1995. One young girl who competed on the show's first episode recalled the Temple Guards as "the scariest thing imaginable. Nothing is scarier and I will stand by that statement until the day I die."

Consider this one of the first viral videos ever. The "Dancing Baby" was a 3D-rendered animation set to Blue Swede's "Hooked on a Feeling." The baby's fame grew thanks to numerous appearances on Ally McBeal.

Bobbitt-ing for Bananas

A '90s Intimacy Game for Couples

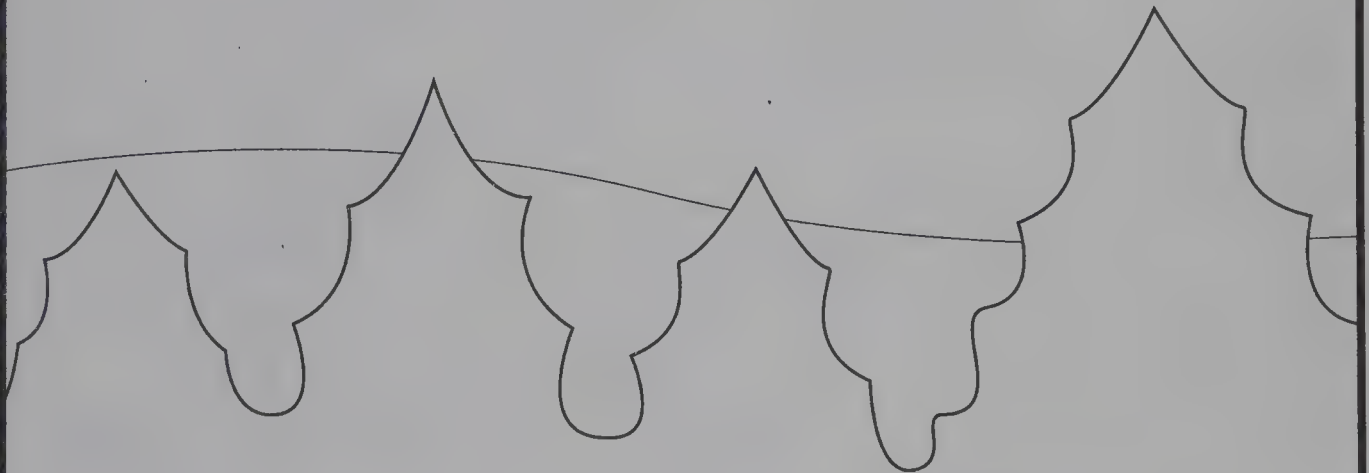

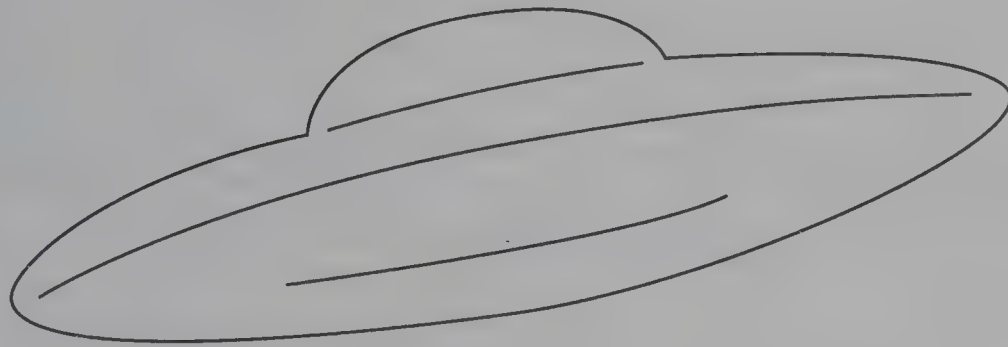

When life hands you lemons, right? On June 23, 1993, Lorena Bobbitt cut off her sleeping husband's johnson and tossed it out of a moving vehicle. Since then, John Bobbitt had his penis reattached (in a 10-hour surgery!), starred in the porn film Frankenpenis, and has claimed to have slept with at least 70 women. TMI!

DESERT STORM TRADING CARDS

Trading cards were all the rage in the '90s. And these "educational" Desert Storm Collector Cards were one of the first lines to venture outside the traditional athlete cards. The trading cards, available in packs of eight and one sticker for 50¢, featured military personnel, weapons, and equipment from both sides of the Gulf War.

I WANT TO BELIEVE

The first appearance of Fox Mulder's famous poster comes five minutes into The X-Files's pilot episode as Dana Scully walks into his office and the two FBI Special Agents first meet. Most recently, it's been on display at the Hollywood Entertainment Museum in Los Angeles.
